MAYOR BARES SPRATLING PAST IN GRAFT PROBE

Winn Says He Kept Solon Off Police Committee For His Near-Bear Activities

DADY MAKES ACCUSATION

McClelland Holds Stand For Hours at Opening of City Hall Investigation

Former Mayor Courtland Winn appeared before the Councilmanic graft probe late this afternoon and substantiated the charges brought against Alderman F. J. Spratling by Alderman John McClelland.

Mayor Winn said that he had expected fully to make Spratling chairman of the Police Committee of Council two years ago, but had never told Spratling so. When he learned that Spratling, on the strength of being made chairman of the committee, had borrowed money from near-beer dealers, he called him in and informed him that he could not give him the appointment.

Chester A. Dady said he had written a contract with Maddox for the grading work on the Peachtree and Entrenchment Creek disposal plant jobs, and ex-Mayor Winn also substantiated the charges. The charges against Ragsdale were not probed at length.

Admitting that he had gotten the information from which he lodged graft charges against Alderman Spratling from Spratling himself in the course of a confidential conversation, Alderman McClelland told the investigators that he made public the information because Alderman Spratling had fallen completely under the influence of Councilman Aldine Chambers.

When asked by Luther Rosser, attorney for Spratling, what caused his feeling against Chambers, McClelland declared that he believed that Chambers was attorney for the Destructor Creamery Company.

Under cross-examination, McClelland said that Maddox had fought continually during his term in Council to get streets closed so that he could get grading contracts.

He amplified his charges against Ragsdale, asserting that a greater part of the live stock bought by the city recently was purchased from certain companies in which Ragsdale was interested. He mentioned a series of warrants for sums aggregating $3,000 given to the Lawhorn Company, which he maintained was dominated by Ragsdale.

Giants Break Up Game in the 13th

Matty and Rucker Battle 12 Innings to Tie, but Nap is Routed Finally.

BROOKLYN, April 29.—For twelve innings to-day Mathewson and Rucker indulged in a pitchers' battle with honors even. In the thirteenth inning, however, the Giants drove Rucker from the mound.

Doyle started the inning with a double, and went to third on Rucker's fumble of Murray's attempted sacrifice. Merkle doubled, scoring Doyle. Herzog came through with a single, scoring Merkle and Murray. Myers also singled. Daubert threw Matty's grounder wild. Rucker was then taken out and Stack took his place. A single by Burns scored Herzog and Myers.

Fire Probe Delayed Again for Witness

Mysterious Reynolds Wires Mayor He Can Not Reach Atlanta Before Thursday.

Council's committee probing the fire department has postponed its meeting for to-day until Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock on account of the absence of Alderman Reynolds, the mysterious witness from Baltimore whom Mayor Woodward expects will present some important new evidence.

Reynolds is in Cincinnati, and Mayor Woodward has received a telegram from him stating that he can not reach Atlanta until Thursday.

CRACKERS LOSE AND DROP TO SECOND PLACE

Brady and Beck Hook Up in Pitchers' Duel; Perry's Hit Scores Run.

FACTORY HEAD TAKEN INTO CUSTODY; LAWYER, BARRED, LATER ADMITTED TO CLIENT

safety, under consideration. Frank has not yet figured as of importance in the case.

Luther Z. Rosser, attorney for Frank, endeavored to see his client. The police refused to let him do so.

Why?

Lawyer Rosser retired hastily declaring he would apply to Judge Bell for a writ of habeas corpus for his client, and would thus take him out of the control of the police.

Later, when Rosser's determination to fight for Frank became known, Chief Beavers admitted that the exclusion of Rosser "was a mistake," that the police orders had been taken too literally, and Rosser was then permitted to talk to his client. Rosser abandoned his plan to sue out a writ of habeas corpus.

The police "explanation" only added mystery to mystery, and really explained nothing.

When Rosser reached the police station he was told that strict orders had been given against anyone seeing Frank.

If Frank was not under arrest, by what right was his lawyer forbidden to see him?

As soon as the police station was reached Frank was taken at once into the detectives' office and the doors were barred against all.

The detectives would say nothing of what took place behind the closed doors. The detective office is on the third floor. At the bottom of the stairs on the second floor Call Officer John West was stationed to bar all who attempted to go to the floor above.

Frank To Be Kept Under Guard

It was learned late this afternoon that Frank will be held on the technical charge of "suspicion." He will not be placed in a cell, but he will be under guard. An extra policeman will be employed to keep watch over the factory superintendent in the police station and Frank will pay for the services of this man.

Luther Z. Rosser, counsel for Frank, would not make a definite statement this afternoon as to his plans for obtaining the freedom of his client. He said that he would institute proceedings if he considered Frank was being held an unnecessarily long time.

At the same time that the Frank proceedings were under way Gober & Jackson, attorneys for J. M. Gantt, also in custody in connection with the crime, made formal application for a writ of habeas corpus before Judge Bell and a hearing was set for 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Frank previously had been questioned by the police. He was brought to the station Monday morning in company with his attorneys and there made a lengthy and detailed statement to the detectives.

The authorities had announced they believed Frank had no knowledge of the crime. Their sudden action to-day appears to be freighted with great significance in view of the fact that they have already quizzed him as to all he knew in connection with the affair.

At the factory of the pencil company reporters were suddenly excluded.

"We've been harassed enough by the reporters of the newspapers," was the explanation volunteered by Ed Mountag, in charge. "This plant has had all the notoriety it wants."

In the working ranks of the National Pencil Company is believed to be the last hope of solving the great strangling mystery. If these workers are barred to the press and to the public and admission is denied to the factory, those in authority have effectively closed one of the most important avenues for the solution of the crime.

Frank Last in Building

Frank, to a Georgian reporter, just before his arrest, said:

"No one is more anxious to learn of the whereabouts of Mary Phagan Saturday afternoon and night than I am. The company is exerting every effort to get information and has employed a Pinkerton detective to work on the case. Officials of the company also thought it best to retain counsel to assist in the investigation, while every one of the foremen and head men about the factory is endeavoring to find out if any of the employees know anything."

"I deeply regret the carelessness shown by the police department in not making a complete investigation as to finger prints and other evidence before a great throng of people were allowed to enter the place."

"The affair is exceedingly embarrassing to me. To know that the authorities even felt that they should detain me for a while and question me leaves a bad taste, and I am doing everything possible to locate the guilty man."

Arthur White and Harry Denham, the last two workmen in the factory plant the day of the tragedy, declared to The Georgian that when they left the building shortly after 3 o'clock in the afternoon Superintendent Frank was the only man remaining.

White's statement follows:

"Denham and I went to the factory to work on Saturday, although it was a holiday. We left shortly after 3 o'clock in the afternoon."

"We punched our time at exactly 3:10 o'clock."

"On our way out I stopped in Mr. Frank's office and borrowed two dollars of him. Denham went in with me. Neither of us saw anyone else in the building. When we left Frank was the only person remaining."

Saw Gantt in Pool Room

"Denham and I stayed together most of the afternoon, and in the evening we went to the Globe pool rooms on Broad Street, near Marietta. We had been in there a little while when I saw John Gantt come in. He did not play, but sat down and watched the game."

"In a little while we went out, but returned in a few minutes and stayed until after 10 o'clock. Finally he said that he guessed he would go home, and that was the last I saw of him."

YOUTH HELD IN PHAGAN CASE

John M. Gantt, held in connection with the investigation of the strangling of little Mary Phagan in the National Pencil Factory. Here Gantt is shown reading the warrant for his arrest on a charge of murder. He stoutly denies any connection with the crime. An alibi story, told by his sister, may clear him of suspicion.

PASTOR PRAYS FOR JUSTICE AT GIRL'S FUNERAL

Mother and Aunt of Mary Phagan Swoon at Burial in Marietta This Morning.

A thousand persons saw a minister of God raise his hands to heaven today and heard him call for divine justice.

Before his closed eyes was a little casket, its pure whiteness hid by the banks and banks of beautiful flowers.

Within the casket lay the bruised and mutilated body of Mary Phagan, the innocent young victim of one of Atlanta's blackest and most bestial crimes.

The spirit of the terrible tragedy filled the air. An aunt of the strangled girl suddenly screamed, fell over in her seat and was carried from the church in a swoon from which she did not fully recover for hours.

The stricken mother collapsed and it was feared that her condition might become critical.

The scene was in the Second Baptist Church at Marietta, where Mary Phagan had lived when she was a child of only three or four years. An immense crowd was at the station when the funeral train arrived at 10 o'clock. Many of them were young people who had played about with the strangled victim when she had lived there years before.

Mother Collapses at Station.

Just as Mrs. W. J. Coleman, mother of Mary, was being helped into a cab, the pure white coffin was lifted from the car. Mrs. Coleman saw it and the single glance was sufficient to awake afresh the torrent of fear-filled memories.

She screamed and fell into the arms of her husband. It was some time before she could be taken to the church to witness the rites over her daughter whose life had been sacrificed to the brutality of some man.

"Nearer, My God, to Thee," sang the choir when the little casket was borne into the church and carried forward, where it was covered with flowers.

Rev. T. T. Linkus, of the Christian Church at East Point, whose Sunday school Mary had attended in the earlier years of her laughing, happy childhood, was the minister.

"May God bring the man guilty of this terrible crime to justice," was the supplication of the minister as he raised his hands above him.

"May God aid the officers of the law in detecting and bringing behind the bars such a man," he continued.

Aunt Screams and Faints.

His words were interrupted first by the sobs of one member of the family and then by another. Miss Lizzie Phagan, an aunt of the strangled girl, uttered a piercing scream. She was unconscious when those by her picked her up. She was taken home in a carriage and Dr. W. M. Kemp was called. He had great difficulty in reviving the grief-stricken woman.

W. J. Phagan, the girl's aged grandfather, sat with his white head bowed in sorrow. The tears ran down his furrowed cheeks unheeded. He was utterly broken and crushed by the calamity which had visited him and his family in his last years.

All the way from New York, where he was on board one of the United States battleships, came Benjamin Phagan to witness the tragic funeral of his innocent young sister. With him were his brothers, Joshua and Charles, and his sister, Ollie Phagan.

A sad procession moved to the little cemetery where the coffin was lowered into the grave that had been prepared. Mrs. Coleman collapsed again at the grave and it is greatly feared that she will be seriously affected by the ordeal through which she has passed.

Anarchy Reported In Mexican Capital

300 Refugees Arriving in New Orleans Say Battle in City Is Imminent.

NEW ORLEANS, April 29.—Mexico City is in a state of anarchy, according to 300 Mexican and American refugees who arrived here by boat from Vera Cruz to-day.

They left the city, fearing a battle was imminent. More than 100 of those who fled from the Mexican capital were compelled to sleep in the hold of the vessel. They said an exodus from Mexico City had been going on for several days.

SCRANTON, PA., DYNAMITE PLOTTER'S BOND APPROVED

CHICAGO, April 29.—Michael J. Hanon, of Scranton, Pa., will be released from the Federal prison at Leavenworth, Kan., to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock, April 30, 1913, to take cognizance, in an official way, of that most brutal crime that was committed in this city on last Saturday night.

"I think it is proper that the city government should take some belt-tightening action as regards this most deplorable matter, which, as it is, is liable to cast unenviable criticism upon the name of our fair city, and I would suggest that your honorable body offer a suitable reward of not less than $1,000 for the capture of the brute or brutes that committed such an outrageous crime. I feel satisfied that every taxpayer of this city will heartily co-operate in indorsing the action of the Mayor and General Council in offering this reward. Re-

STEPFATHER OF DEAD GIRL OUTSPOKEN AGAINST LEE

That Mary Phagan never left the factory after she entered it at 12:15 o'clock Saturday, the day of her murder, and that she was killed and her body dragged into the basement by the negro night watchman, Newt Lee, now in jail, is the firm belief of the child's stepfather, W. J. Coleman, and other members of her family.

was cut off from the front and bound around her mouth to keep her from screaming.

Ribbon Found Near Boiler.

Another bit of evidence, it was said, that went to throw added suspicion on the black was a bow of the child's blue ribbon and a handkerchief found down near the boiler, where he constantly stayed.

The negro evidently kept the child in the factory all day," Mr. Coleman said, "and was afraid to attack her until midnight for fear she would scream or somebody would come. He may or may not have knocked her senseless from the first, or he may have tied her. I do not know, but when Gant entered the shop it is more than likely that he knew nothing of the girl's presence there and simply went up and got his shoes, as he said, and went out again.

"All this about Mary having been seen on the street at midnight or at any other time after 12 o'clock in the day I do not think can be true. I believe she remained all day in the building. After the negro did the work he was afraid to leave or not to notify the police, which would make appearances worse for him. Therefore he called the officers."

Now Clears Mullinax.

Mr. Coleman said he had at first given credence to a report that Mary had come home at 6 o'clock Saturday afternoon, and that Mullinax, meeting her as she got off the car, had taken her back to town with him. This report, Mr. Coleman said, turned out to be untrue. The conductor had made a mistake, and the girl Mullinax was with was Miss Pearl Robinson, of Bellwood, as he awoke in jail.

This was corroborated by the conductor himself, J. C. Horne, 11 Corn Place, on whose car the reporter rode out to the Coleman home on Linda Street. The conductor said that Mullinax and Miss Robinson had taken his car out, and knowing Mullinax, he had talked with him and the girl, who at that time he thought was Mary Phagan. When Mullinax and Miss Robinson reached their corner Mullinax remarked that it was a bit chilly and he was going home to build a fire. It was later that they returned to the theater, the conductor said, but on whose car he did not know.

Writing Test Points to Negro

NO CHECK YET ON TARIFF BILL TALK

Experts Declare Note Written by Lee Resembles That Found Near Slain Girl.

Handwriting experts said to-day that they were able to determine a resemblance between the handwriting of Newt Lee, the negro watchman in the National Pencil factory, and that in the mysterious notes found by the body of Mary Phagan in the base-mint of the factory.

They were of the opinion that the negro wrote both notes, as they asserted that many of the peculiarities in the handwriting of Lee were found in the messages that lay in the dirty mint.

The Georgian already had drawn attention to the probability that the negro wrote the notes, or directed them written to divert suspicion.

That the notes were written to throw suspicion on another was suggested by the wording of one of the notes which, as deciphered by a Georgia reporter, was as follows:

"He told me he wood love me laid down play like the night watch did but that long tall black negro did it by his self."

The theory immediately arose that Lee wrote the notes to turn suspicion on another negro that had been about his building either from himself or from another person he was trying to shield.

WATERSTON, April 29.—W.R. Underwood, the Democratic Leader, determined to pass his tariff bill at the earliest possible moment, the House to-day plunged into actual consideration of the measure under the five-minute rule.

Underwood still was determined to allow full and free discussion and ample opportunity to offer amendments. He is not disposed to resort to a gag rule. It was known, though, that the Democratic leader will resort to a gag as soon as he becomes convinced that an attempt is being made to delay the bill.

That the notes were written to throw suspicion on another was suggested by the wording of one of the notes which, as deciphered by a Georgia reporter, was as follows:

"He told me he wood love me laid down play like the night watch did but that long tall black negro did it by his self."

The theory immediately arose that Lee wrote the notes to turn suspicion on another negro that had been about his building either from himself or from another person he was trying to shield.

REWARD OF $1,000 URGED BY MAYOR

Brown Offers $200 for Capture of Slayer—C. C. Jones Also Gives $100.

Governor Joseph M. Brown to-day offered a reward of $200 for the apprehension and conviction of the murderer of little Mary Phagan and Mayor James G. Woodward issued a call for a special meeting of Council for tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock, urging a $1,000 reward.

Governor Brown's decision was reached on receipt of the following letter from Solicitor Hugh M. Dorsey:

"From the best information obtainable, it is my belief that the circumstances surrounding the death of little Miss Mary Phagan indicate a most brutal murder, probably attended with another horrible and deatable crime."

Restraining her tears with difficulty, Mrs. Frank declared her belief in the entire innocence of her husband. She preferred not to talk at length of the case and said that it had not been discussed in their home.

She broke down several times while talking and burst into tears, but recovered herself and continued the conversation.

"My husband is absolutely innocent and able to take care of himself in the matter," she said. "I would rather that any statements should come from him. We discussed the matter hardly at all in our home."

Mrs. Frank is a striking appearing woman of about 30 years. With her were her father, E. Selig, 68 East Georgia Avenue, of the West Disinfectant Company, and a brother-in-law, A. E. Marcus, of the Marcus Clothing Company.

TRAGIC FACE OF STRANGLLED MARY PHAGAN--NEW PICTURE STUDIES

A photographic study of the victim in the strangling mystery showing the sad expression in her eyes.

CHARGE IS BASEST OF LIES, DECLARES GANTT, ACCUSED

John Milton Gant, the accused, of a terrible crime hanging over him, has made to-day a complete denial of any connection with the Mary Phagan murder in the first formal statement to the public since his arrest in Marietta yesterday afternoon.

The statement, which was given to a Georgian reporter, was said by Chief Beavers to be substantially the same as that taken by the police department stenographer last night for the use of the city detectives.

This remarkable denial, if it is to be given credence, sweeps away a whole train of circumstantial evidence that appeared most strongly to connect him with the brutal tragedy.

He is Contradicted.

E. F. Holloway, timekeeper for the National Pencil Company, told a Georgian reporter that he had it from Gant's own lips that he had been out with the Phagan girl.

He never even walked home with the girl, he insists.

Mary Pirk, one of the girls employed with Mary Phagan, told the authorities that she had heard the girls at the factory say that Gant was in love with Mary and waited to walk home with her frequently.

Gant declares in his statement that he was at the home of his half-sister, Mrs. F. C. Terrell, 284 East Linden Street, the night that the murder was committed, going there directly from a pool room.

A woman describing herself as Gant's half-sister, is said by the police to have told two plain clothes men that Gant was not there when they went to look for him Sunday night; that he had not been there for some time and was on his way to California.

Reverse Statements.

To-day Mrs. Terrell reversed the statement that is said to have been made to the plain clothes men and declared that Gant not only was there, but slept with her son, Will.

Gant's statement is full follows:

"I do not deny going to the pencil factory Saturday afternoon. My purpose in going there was to get a pair of shoes I had left there when I quit work there about three weeks ago.

"After getting my shoes from the factory, I walked around town for a time and about 7:30 in the evening met Arthur White, who works for the pencil company. With him I went to the Globe Pool Rooms on Broad Street near Marietta.

"I didn't play, but sat down and watched them for several hours, leaving there probably at 10:30 o'clock. I went to the home of my half-sister, Mrs. F. C. Terrell, 284 East Linden Street, where I have been staying and she let me in the house. Mrs. Terrell's husband is superintendent of the Forsyth Building.

"I slept All Night.

"I suppose she let me in about 11 o'clock and I went directly to bed. I slept all night until Sunday morning.

"I didn't hear of the murder until Sunday night when I went to call on a young woman with whom I have been going. She is Miss Anna Chambers, of 18 Warren Place. I went there about 8 o'clock Sunday evening.

"Her brother Phil, who works at the National Pencil Company's plant, rushed into the room and said that a girl had been murdered in the basement of the factory. He did not know who it was. That was the very first I heard of the crime.

"I did not learn the horrible details of the murder until I read them in the papers Monday morning.

"I was not trying to escape when I went to Marietta Monday morning. I had bought a crop near Marietta and was going up there to farm. I had made arrangements some time ago with my mother to see her Monday and my trip there was simply to fill that engagement.

Basest Sort of a Lie.

"I would not harm any girl, least of all the daughter of Mrs. Coleman. Ten years ago I knew Mrs. Coleman when she was Mrs. Phagan and lived near Marietta in Cobb County. Mary was just a little girl then, about four years old. From the time I knew her, then as little more than a toddling child until I went to work in the pencil factory last June I never saw her.

"I never went out with Mary after I started work in the factory. I never walked home with her. I never was any more to her than I was to the 175 other girls at the factory. I spoke to her as I might to any of the others, but that was all.

"The charge that I had any part in her destruction is the basest sort of a lie and an injustice."

Talk of Habeas Corpus.

The determined fight instituted to gain the immediate freedom of Gant was another of the new features of the most sensational tragedy Atlanta has had in years. Backed by relatives of influence and a family of good repute, Gant was no more in his cell at police headquarters than an effort to obtain his liberty was started.

"Either give him an immediate preliminary hearing or I will institute habeas corpus proceedings," was the ultimatum delivered to Chief of Detectives Lanford by Judge George F. Gober, member of the law firm of Gober & Jackson, and a relative of the accused man.

"He is an innocent man. He is as guiltless as the babe in arms. He is entitled to an immediate hearing on this terrible accusation that has been made against him. Either this must be granted or I will take a course to obtain his liberty."

"That's the man, I'm quite sure," said Skipper, when he saw Gant.

Neither man was absolutely sure, but each was fairly confident that he had picked the right man. Whether he believed one or the other or neither was the problem that confronted the police when they started their work to-day.

GUILT WILL BE FIXED BY NIGHT, OFFICIALS SAY

Admit Chain of Evidence Is Still Tangled, but Assert Solution Is Near.

Has the murderer of pretty little Mary Phagan slipped the net that the police most carefully spread for him?

Is the author of the crime that shocked the city and State with its terrible brutality still at large?

Is the mystery, as baffling in its myriad conflicting elements as it is revolting in its details, still as far from solution as it was when the beaten and bruised little body of Mary Phagan was found lifeless in a pile of trash and litter in a Forsyth Street basement?

When the city detectives and Pinkertons picked up the twisted skeins of evidence this morning they admitted that they were as badly tangled as when they laid them down after working incessantly upon them until long after midnight.

They are positive, however, that the guilt will be almost certainly fixed before nightfall. It only remains to follow each thread of evidence out to

"To what person will the damning thread lead?" is the question that is holding the entire city in suspense. No other tragedy in years has so gripped the people as this one of the laughing, innocent girl lured to her death.

When the final truth is known will the accusing finger-point of guilt be leveled at—

Newt Lee, the negro night watchman, against whom suspicion was strongly directed to-day, although he at first was held only as an important witness.

Or—
Arthur Mullinax, of 60 Poplar Street, formerly a street car conductor, who was the first man arrested and seriously regarded as the possible murderer. The evidence against him is slight.

J. M. Ganit, an employee of the National Pencil Company until three weeks ago, arrested as he got off a car in Marietta yesterday. The evidence against him is far from convincing.

Or—
Geron Bailey, negro elevator man in the pencil factory, who was arrested at about the same time as Mullinax and held as a material witness.

Police Expect Results.

The police are confident that they will know in a few hours the identity of the slayer.

Chief Beavers, Chief of Detectives Lanford, Detectives Black, Starnes, Hassett, Rosser and Bullard and Pinkerton operatives were on the case again early this morning. Out of the many clews obtained yesterday they expected to get a definite lead and bring order out of the confusion that hampered the first two days' work.

They have everybody in custody against whom suspicion has been strongly directed. They have a mass of information and a mass of testimony, much of which is conflicting. From this they will eliminate the inaccurate and improbable and proceed carefully to weave the net of evidence.

No mystery in recent years has served to excite the public mind as the Phagan murder. Detective headquarters have been thronged with persons who have believed that they had clews to the perpetrator of the crime.

All day yesterday was a ceaseless procession going into the detectives' offices and another procession coming out. The officers were harassed as much as they were aided.

Many Worthless Clews.

Countless persons came to give general information about Mullinax, or Ganit, or Lee, or Bailey. Others came to identify Mullinax as the man they had seen with a girl on a certain street at a certain time Saturday night. Others were sure that it was Ganit they had seen.

Some of this information was absolutely worthless and some was regarded as furnishing possible clews.

While some of the officers were hearing the various tales of these peo-

MISS PEARL ROBINSON, sweetheart of Arthur Mullinax, the man questioned by the police in connection with the slaying of Mary Phagan. Her story cleared Mullinax of any suspicion of complicity in the crime which has shocked Atlanta.

LOYALTY SENDS GIRL TO DEFEND MULLINAX

Brave little Pearl Robinson!

Her loyalty and devotion to Arthur Mullinax, one of the four men held in connection with the brutal strangling of Mary Phagan, form the only bright feature in a sordid and revolting crime.

What did she care for the stares of the groups of people that hung about the detective headquarters when the life of her lover appeared to be in danger?

What did she care for the remarks that were directed at her when she pushed and shoved her way through the morbid crowds awaiting for a new sensation?

What difference did it make to her that her name instantly would be on the lips of everyone as the defender of a man pointed out by one witness as the mysterious person with little Mary Phagan the last time she was seen alive?

Love Gave Her Courage.

It was the ages-old story of a woman's heart refusing to believe any ill of the man to whom it is pledged and devoted.

In the young heart of pretty Pearl Robinson was implanted that eternally feminine and eternally remarkable attribute as deeply as though she were twice her 16 years.

She knew Arthur Mullinax, liked him, probably loved him with the implicit trust of a woman. He had been good to her, kind to her, and always gentle and courteous. That was enough. He could not have been guilty of the terrible deed that has shocked a community as it has not been shocked before in years.

And she was not afraid to tell the world her confidence in the innocence of the man toward whom the wavering and shifting finger of suspicion had pointed at various times since the authorities began following out the many clews of the baffling mystery.

She was astounded, overcome, when she read that Mullinax had been held in connection with the gruesome killing. How could they associate him with such an act—that of a fiend and beast? When the first shock had passed she was all action. She would tell the officers their mistake. She had no sooner made up her mind than she proceeded to carry out her intention.

"Arthur Did Not Do It!"

A few minutes later she was in the office of Chief of Detectives Lanford. She was surrounded by sharp-eyed and keen-minded detectives. That did not disconcert her in the least. She trembled from the thoughts of the terrible crime with which the name of her lover had been linked, but not from any fear of the guilt of him she had come to defend.

"Arthur did not commit that awful deed," she told Chief Lanford, in a positive and not-to-be-contradicted manner.

That settled it. She had said the final word. Of course, she went on and off of his movements on the night of the tragedy, and with the aid of his landlady established a very strong alibi. But that was incidental in himself. All that mattered was of consequence was what her heart told her—"Arthur did not do it."

She was not afraid to tell the world her confidence in the innocence of the man toward whom the wavering and shifting finger of suspicion had pointed at various times since the authorities began following out the many clews of the baffling mystery.

And she was not afraid to tell the world her confidence in the innocence of the man toward whom the wavering and shifting finger of suspicion had pointed at various times since the authorities began following out the many clews of the baffling mystery.

Third Degree for Lee.

Newt Lee, the black night watchman, was given the "third degree" in the belief that he knew much more about the crime than he professed. He showed signs of weakening several times, but each time recovered before he had made any admissions seriously damaging either to himself or any of the other prisoners.

The shifting of suspicion to Lee was the most startling development of this forenoon, although what basis it had in actual evidence is hard to determine. It is known that the Coleman family are inclined to believe that he knows a great deal more about the crime than he has been pleased to tell. Screams in the buildings were heard by persons in the livery stable nearby, according to stories current to-day. How could Lee have made his rounds every half hour and not have heard them, members of the Coleman family ask.

O. L. Bagley, shipping clerk for the Atlanta Milling Company, was with Ganit Saturday night and left him a few minutes after 10 o'clock, according to a statement to a Georgia reporter. Bagley declared:

"Ganit is out a casual acquaintance of mine, though I have known him for about a year. I do not believe he is the kind of man who would have committed the crime."

"Our meeting Saturday night was accidental. I had not seen him for three or four weeks and asked him where he had been. He then told me of going to St. Louis."

'I Feel as Though I Could Die,' Sobs Mary Phagan's Sister

Among all the hearts that are bowed down in sorrow over the murder of Mary Phagan, the 14-year-old factory child found dead in the National Pencil factory Saturday, there is none who feels the suffering and the anguish of the separation so keenly as her sister, Ollie, 18 years old, her companion since childhood.

For with her it is the suffering of youth, when the rose-veil of life has been lifted to show its tragic and terrible side in all its fullness for the first time. And it is all the more pitiful for her because it is the kind of suffering that brings to one that sense of despair and a later sadness that makes the whole world seem never quite the same again, no matter what happens. Something of its sweetness and joy has gone out to stay.

"Oh, I am so lonely without her," the young girl told a Georgian reporter as the tears fell down her face unheeded. She was at her little home on Lindsay Street. "Mary and I were always together and we always told each other everything. We slept in the same bed at night; we had ever since we were little b'kids; and we always talked after the lights were out. There wasn't a thing that Mary wouldn't tell me, and I would always advise her and tell her what I thought was right if little questions would come up between us. She was always such a good little thing, nobody could help loving her!"

She clasped and unclasped her hands in front of her as though she did not know what to do, and leaned upon the bureau as if she were tired.

"I Never Had But One Sister."

"I don't know what I'm going to do—I haven't got anybody now," she said. "I never had but one sister and she's gone."

Her voice choked and she could not go on for a time. When she did it was to speak of how she was in Marietta when the tragedy happened and how the news came home to her mother on Sunday morning. She had not been home to go to the poor little body in the undertakers' parlors shortly after it was taken there.

"Under the present conditions of morale in Atlanta, with the segregated district abolished, these low characters undoubtedly have grown worse. That our janitor was bribed to allow them in the building, while a surprise to me, is not an unbelievable suggestion. Such fellows as these might be expected to stoop to such things."

She was astounded, overcome, when she read that Mullinax had been held in connection with the gruesome killing. How could they associate him with such an act—that of a fiend and beast?

She had not been home to go to the poor little body in the undertakers' parlors shortly after it was taken there.

"Under the present conditions of morale in Atlanta, with the segregated district abolished, these low characters undoubtedly have grown worse. That our janitor was bribed to allow them in the building, while a surprise to me, is not an unbelievable suggestion. Such fellows as these might be expected to stoop to such things."

She was astounded, overcome, when she read that Mullinax had been held in connection with the gruesome killing. How could they associate him with such an act—that of a fiend and beast?

When the first shock had passed she was all action. She would tell the officers their mistake. She had no sooner made up her mind than she proceeded to carry out her intention.

"I don't know what I'm going to do—I haven't got anybody now," she said. "I never had but one sister and she's gone."

She had not been home to go to the poor little body in the undertakers' parlors shortly after it was taken there.

BRYAN FAILS TO CURB MOVE FOR ANTI-JAP BILL

California Legislators Demand That Nippon State Specifically Its Objections to Measure.

SACRAMENTO, CAL., April 29.—Sentiment to-day in the California Legislature favored the adoption of an anti-aliens land bill similar to the one that brought Secretary of State Bryan scurrying across the continent.

Legislators are disappointed at the statement from Bryan. They believed he would disclose the diplomatic expressions that had passed between the United States and Japan. When they found he merely desired to amplify the statement wired Governor Johnson there was distinct disappointment.

"Be specific" is the demand heard on every hand. If there were actual objection to the land bill as proposed, the legislators feel they are entitled to know what that objection was.

Accordingly they will ask that Japan tell the State Department what is objectionable, and that this statement be transmitted to the lawmakers.

The legislators point out that Japan made no protest against similar laws in other States. They say Mr.

Bryan himself was evidently unaware of the passage of these laws, and want to know why Japan objects on diplomatic grounds in the case of California and not in other cases.

It was considered a certainty to-day that unless this answer was forthcoming the Legislature would not delay much longer. The lawmakers indicated they would consider any answer from Japan. Unless this objection is stronger than any reservation now made, according to a majority leader, the bill will be passed.

International Law Expert Advises Wilson.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—President Wilson and John Bassett Moore, Acting Secretary of State, held an extended conference at the White House to-day to consider latest developments in the California-Japanese situation. The President plainly is worried by the alien bill complications.

Acting Secretary Moore was called to the executive mansion because of his extensive knowledge of international law. The administration does not hope for a settlement entirely satisfactory to Japan and while President Wilson is certain the entire situation is a plot to embarrass him, the President will do everything possible to obtain the passage of a denatured alien land law bill.

California Not Bound By Treaty, Says Works.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Asserting the right of California to enact laws prohibiting aliens from holding lands, Senator Works, of California, in a statement to-day said if the National Government makes a treaty infringing upon this right the State is not bound thereby.

He suggests that the treaty obstructing the rights of the States be abrogated as one solution of the difficulty.

Senator Works' statement follows:

Every State in the Union has the right to provide by law who shall hold and own lands within the State and to except aliens from this right. A number of the States have already done this. The National Government has no right to enact any law or make any treaty that will deny or impair that right on the part of a State.

Therefore, the Governor and the Legislature of the State of California are strictly within their rights when they insist upon enacting an alien law, whether it excludes civilians of all or only of one foreign nation. If the National Government has made a treaty which infringes upon these rights, the State is not bound by it, it may enact such a law notwithstanding.

On the other hand, the President is strictly within his rights in endeavoring to persuade the State to waive its rights and respect a treaty made with a foreign nation.

But neither our Government nor a foreign nation has any right to coerce a State to prevent lawful legislation by it, and no self-respecting State could submit to such coercion or dictation by either.

The people of the country and the Japanese Government may just as well understand once for all that such subjects of that nation as are coming to California are extremely objectionable to our people, and that their permanent ownership of land in the State will not be allowed.

Mrs. Wilson Cheers Dying Consumptive

President's Wife Takes Flowers to Lad in Poor District of Washington.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The sympathy and charity of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson were illustrated a few days ago by her journeying from the White House to the bedside of a poor boy who is dying of tuberculosis.

Dr. Gary Grayson, naval surgeon and aide to the President who spends much time caring for the sick poor, told the President's wife of a recent trip to the poor district in the White House to the bedside of a poor boy who is dying of tuberculosis.

Mrs. Wilson was touched. Collecting a bunch of spring flowers from the garden, she accompanied Dr. Grayson in a White House automobile to the home of the unfortunate lad in the poor district of the national capital.

Commits Hari Kari Over Jap Alien Bill

Chicago Oriental's Suicidal Protest Follows Bryan's Visit on Way to California.

CHICAGO, April 29.—A Chicago Coroner's jury to-day got its first introduction to hari kari, when it was called upon to render a verdict on the suicide of Lar Kie Kun, a young Japanese who ended his life as a protest against the proposed California anti-aliens land law.

For several days before his death Lar Kie Kun every day bought every edition of every newspaper issued in Chicago, and read every word of the dispatches from Sacramento and Washington.

On the day Secretary Bryan was in Chicago on his way to California the young Japanese said he would give several years of his life for a talk with Bryan.

Declares American Children Snobbish

Mrs. Adelaide S. Lean Tells Why She Educates Girls in Paris Instead of United States.

NEW YORK, April 29.—The children of this country of the well-to-do classes are imbued, almost from the cradle, with the spirit of snobbishness. The education of the child is not as yet on a proper basis in this country. That is why my two girls are being brought up in Paris and will remain there until they are sixteen.

Mrs. Adelaide Starr Lean, who has lived in Paris for the last five years, made this statement at the Waldorf-Astoria. She continued:

"My girls began to talk about 'society.' There were dances and parties every day, so I took them to Europe. They are taught there the things they really need most—manners and languages."

EASY WAY TO GET RID OF PIMPLES

Resinol Really Does What Cosmetics are Supposed to Do.

It is so easy to get rid of pimples and blackheads with Resinol, and it costs so little, too, that anyone whose face is disfigured by these pests is foolish to keep on with useless cosmetics, waters or complicated "beauty treatments." Here's the way to do it:

Bathe your face for several minutes with warm soap and hot water, then apply a little Resinol Ointment very gently. Let this stay on ten minutes, and wash off with Resinol soap and water. Then rub the pores with a dash of cold water to close the pores. Do this every morning and evening, and you will be surprised to see how quickly the blackheads and pimples are gone. Resinol balsams soothe and cleanse every pore, leaving the complexion clear and velvety.

Resinol poultice starts itching instantly and speedily heals eczema, and other skin humors, dandruff, burns and pimples. Sold by every druggist. Resinol Ointment, one jar, 50 cents and $1. Resinol Soap, 25 cents. For generous free trial, write Dept. 14-S, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

Ban on Immigrants Called Too Severe

Congressmen Threaten to Press Investigation of Secretary Wilson's Enforcement of Laws.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Several members of Congress, who declined to discuss the matter, told public to-day, complained of the rigorous manner in which the immigration laws are being enforced by Secretary of Labor Wilson.

They said they might press an investigation of the Secretary's conduct by Congress. One member denied he had unsuccessfully appealed to the department in the case of over a half dozen aliens who were ordered deported because of trivial physical defects.

Watching Baseball Games Is Harmful

Play Furnishes Too Much Excitement for Spectators, Says Dr. Sargent of Harvard.

CAMBRIDGE, April 29.—Dr. Dudley A. Sargent, Harvard's expert on physical culture, said to-day:

"The excitement attending ball games has害. Thousands of men and boys and even women become unduly excited over the athletic prowess of professional players.

"There is nothing wrong with a ball game as such any more than there is with a theatrical performance as such, but such games arouse emotion without furnishing a motor outlet. We are overdoing one phase of the so-called love of sport."

SELMA DRUGGIST HELD FOR DEATH OF HIS WIFE

SELMA, ALA., April 29.—The Coroner's jury has returned a verdict that the death of Mrs. J. D. Summers was caused by violence inflicted by her husband, Dr. J. D. Summers, an East Selma druggist.

Friends of the druggist maintain that while both were intoxicated in their apartments over the drug store, the woman fell from the second floor.

SEEK CLEW IN QUEER WORDS IN ODD NOTES

Who Would Be the Most Interested in Saying That the Night Watchman Did Not Do It?

While the tendency of the police straight through has seemed to be to doubt that Mary Phagan, the murdered girl, really wrote the small notes found beside her body purporting to give a clew to her murderer, the girl's stepfather, W. J. Coleman, thinks it possible that she may have written one of the scraps.

That one is the note written on the little yellow factory slip—so faintly traced it is almost impossible to read it. It is the one that says:

"mama that negro hired down here did this I went to get water and he pushed me down this hole a long tall negro black that had it woke long lean tall negro I write while play with me."

"Somehow, it looks like her handwriting to me," said Mr. Coleman. "But, of course, I can not be sure. Now, about the other note I am doubtful. It seems to be written too well for the child to have done it in the almost insensible condition she must have been in at the time. Whether she wrote either of the notes of her own accord, though, or whether she was forced to do it by her murderer to turn suspicion from himself, of course, is mere speculation. Only time can tell, if anything."

Doubts Other Note's Authorship.

The other note whose authority Mr. Coleman doubts is the one scrawled on a notepad. It reads as it was at first translated:

"He said he wood love me laid down like the night watch did it but that long tall black negro did it by his self."

This note, however, brings up an argument advanced by several people who have studied it carefully. They have found that in some way one word, "play," was omitted in the first translation, and they think that instead of "night watch" the words were meant to mean "night watch," which is relative to the subject. With these changes the note would read:

"He said he wood love me laid down play like the night watch did it, but that long tall black negro did it by self."

They ask: If the murderer told the child he was going to "play like the night watch did it," and then the child goes on to explain that it wasn't the night watchman at all that did it, but another negro, wouldn't that appear that the child was endeavoring to shield the night watchman?

Argue Against Watchman.

They also ask: Would a child in the predicament Mary Phagan was supposed to be in, insensible and her mind wandering, be thinking of trying to shield a night watchman in her note, even before she described the man who had treated her so cruelly?

Again they ask: Who would be the most interested person in the world in saving the hide of the night watchman?

Then the child writes the notes herself, was she forced to write them, or did somebody else write them? The notes are written to throw suspicion off of the night watchman.

Translated in that way, the argument would go to bear out the expressed belief of the girl's stepfather that the negro committed the crime.

Ollie Phagan, the 18-year-old sister of Mary, said that when she did not know what country she did not know that Mary wrote either of the notes. She knew her handwriting well, and the rough letters did not look like hers, although they might possibly be.

Excitement prevailed to-day among those interested, who were found at the scene in which the fatal struggle between the dead girl and her assailant took place was not on the second floor of the pencil factory, as it was thought, where a few strands of her hair were found in the cogs of a steel lathe, but in the dressing room of the place. This was made certain by digging back over the floor of the room, and a rag of her dress that was picked up, and which showed that it had been used to gag her. The strip was of silk, and had been cut with a knife from the part of the lavender dress, which was new, and which the child was wearing for the first time.

It was said that the discovery was made by some of the girls employed at the factory, who slipped upon the blood which, in one place, had formed a small pool. When they noticed the appearance of the place, the dead girl's hair had only caught in the steel lathe when her murderer had dragged her by it.

This would go to corroborate the belief of several persons acquainted with the tragedy's various angles that Mary Phagan had left the building at least once for a short while from the time she entered it to get her money Saturday until her lifeless form was picked up and carried from the basement by the authorities.

They say she might have either been really forced in, or possibly taken back in the building by her murderer, who obtained entrance either by a key or went in by prying off a staple from an alley door.

Logic Involves Negro.

In other instances, it had been keeping close tab on her actions, and either procured a key for himself to go in, or bribed the watchman to pass him. This would also bear out their insistence that the negro New Lee, in jail, knows more than he is letting on about the tragedy.

Certain it is that it seems strange, that if a liver stable man next door to the factory could hear the girl screaming at midnight, any one in the building could have heard cries very clearly, unless he was asleep or away from his post. When the watchman did not claim he was. The liver stable man had paid no attention to the cries, as he thought it was negroes carousing.

WHY PREMATURE GRAY HAIR?

There are many causes of premature gray hair—sickness, a nervous temperament, an unbalanced food, a diet not supplying the scalp with the proper amount of nutriment, sometimes it is hereditary, and the daughter finds herself quite gray in her early thirties. We don't always know the cause, but we do know that gray hair adds at least ten years to the age of a woman, ten to an old woman, and that a young woman's hair begins to fade and lose its color, it is very foolish for her to let it go on unheeded. In a year or two she will be an old gray-headed woman. And just a little care and treatment can save her hair and her youth.

There is a remedy for this, it is not a vulgar bleach or artificial coloring for the hair. It is a pure, scientific preparation of tonic virtue which restores your hair to its own natural color and beautiful, healthy conditions. If your hair is losing its life and color, there is no reason at all why you should not take Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, it will not do you any harm, any more than that you should refuse to use a cure for dandruff. The fading gray hair and the dandruff both result from scalp disease, and both should be treated.

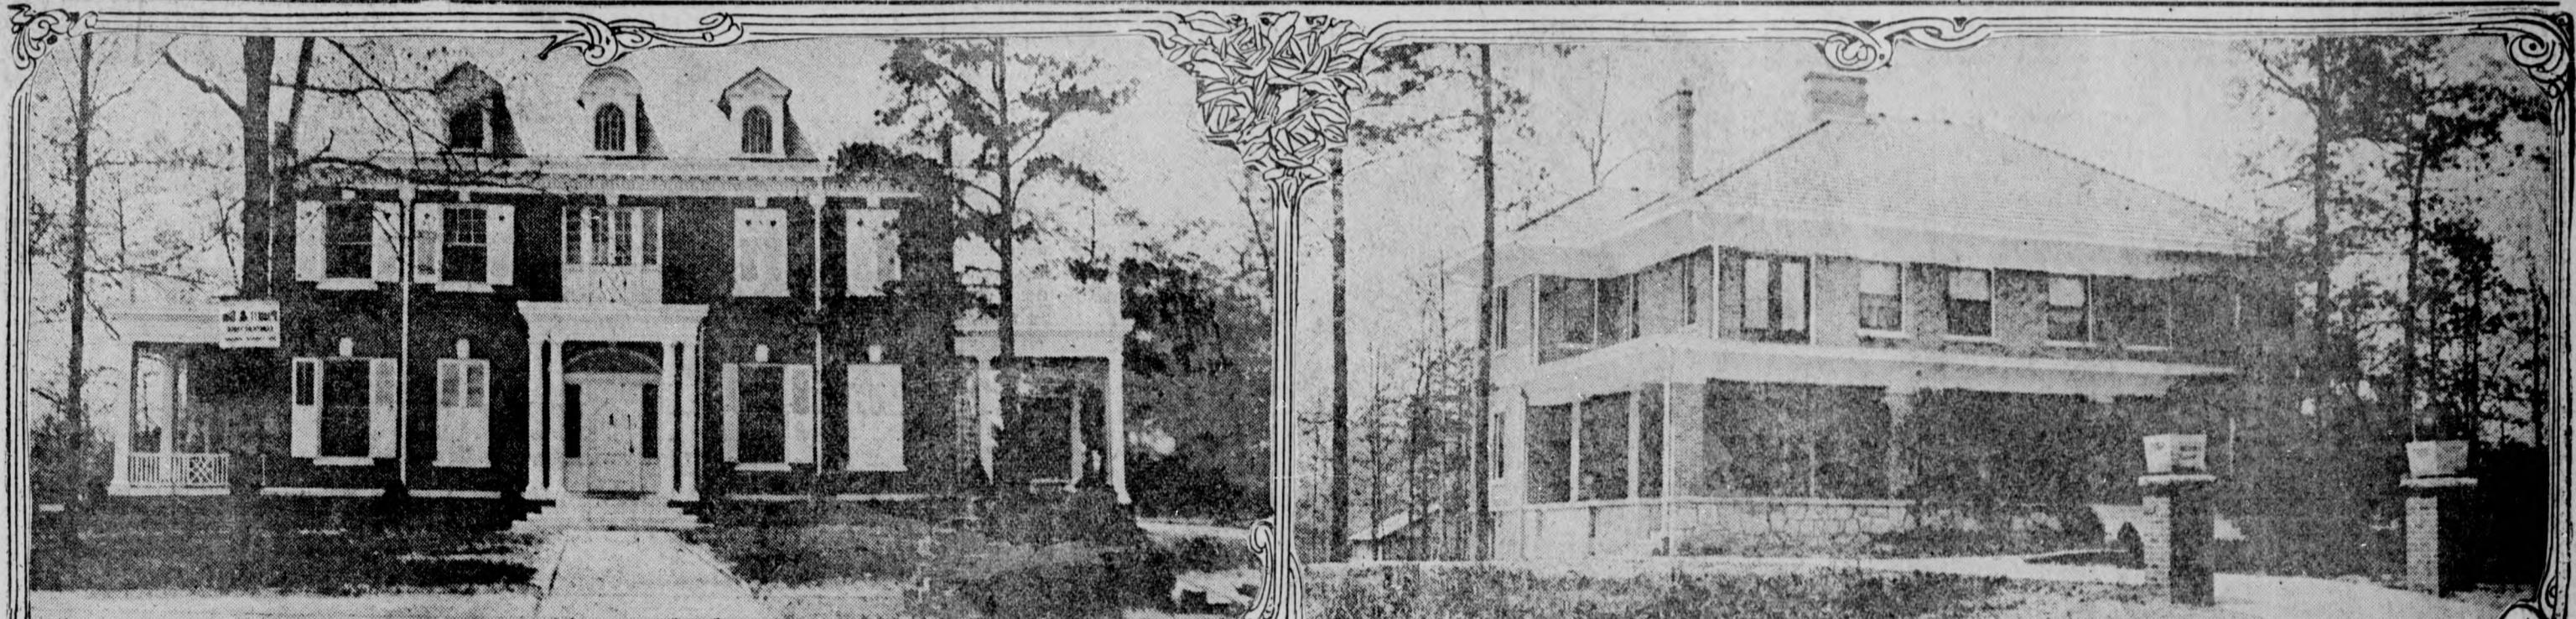

Remember's Hair Dye we make in our own laboratory and personally guarantee it to be pure and harmless. Non-sticky and does not stain skin or scalp. Use it at once if your hair is turning gray, and you will be wonderfully surprised and pleased at the result.

Remember's Hair Dye is good as long as you can use it, when it slips away you never can get it back.

Prepared for light, medium and dark brown and black hair. Trial size, 25c; postpaid 31c. Regular size, 75c; postpaid, $3c. For sale by all Jacobs' Pharmacy Stores and druggists generally.

PLAN PURCHASE OF BROOKHAVEN LAND FOR CLUB

DETAILS OF BIG PONY CONTEST ANNOUNCED

Capital City Members Authorize Committee to Buy Estates for Country Organization.

Negotiations are on between the Capital City Club and realty men that will lead to the purchase of the Brookhaven estates for the establishment of a country club as an adjunct of the downtown organization.

Authority to make the purchase was given last night at the annual meeting of the club. A special committee was authorized, to be appointed by President R. F. Maddox, to take up finally the details of the purchase, in connection with the finance committee.

Negotiations will hinge on the price. John E. Murphy, member of the Capital City Club, said to-day the owners of the Brookhaven estates will be asked to reduce their demands—in the neighborhood of $100,000.

The overwhelming vote by club members in favor of purchasing the country property is considered evidence of the desire for the double establishment. The plans provide for the maintenance of the country club in the downtown club, but with separate officers.

The Brookhaven estates include a handsome club house, located picturesquely in a tract of about 150 acres upon which is a fine nine-hole golf course. It is proposed to lay out an eighteen-hole course and otherwise amplify the club grounds arrangements.

It is the opinion of the business men of the Capital City Club that they may reserve 50 acres and sell it eventually for enough to pay for the entire property at its present price.

Policeman Accused As Bandit Leader

Confessed Robbers Say Officer Walked Beat by Night, Planned Crime by Day.

CHICAGO, April 29.—In a cell at the county jail to-day, Policeman William H. Ohm denied that he was the chief of a gang of robbers that worked in Chicago all of last winter.

Ohm was the "brain" and silent leader of a gang of seven burglars and highwaymen, according to confessions of three of the men who said they were members of the gang.

Ohm, according to the three highwaymen, would beat his beat at night, and in the daylight informed and ordered the robbery of places and pedestrians in his district.

MISS GORDON AGAIN HEADS CHILD LABOR CONFERENCE

MERIDIAN, MISS., April 29.—The child labor conference, in session here, to-day re-elected Miss Jean M. Gordon, of New Orleans, president. H. P. Hanson, of Memphis, was made secretary-treasurer.

ODDITIES —in the— DAY'S NEWS

YOU CAN DO AS YOU LIKE IN YOUR OWN FLAT.—A person's flat is his own castle. If he wants to sing and play rattle time all night it's his own business. So ruled Judge Gemmill, of Chicago, in deciding Mrs. Nellie McCalley had no legal complaint against Miss Anna O'Rourke of the flat above.

ARM CUT OFF AND HE DIDN'T KNOW IT.—While searching John Bergstrom for weapons after arresting him for allegedly conduct, policemen at the Hammonton, N. J., prison found the prisoner's right arm had been cut off. Bergstrom had not missed it, and could not account for the accident.

MONEY DOESN'T TALK IN THIS COURT.—A remark that "money might make the road to divorce easier" was regretted to-day by Eugene Bauchowitz, a divorced litigant in a Chicago court. "May be if I had a million dollars I might get a divorce," said Bauchowitz when the court rejected his application for a decree. "Thirty days in jail," said Judge Pettit.

There Is Every Reason for Starting Now if You Wish To Be One of the Winners.

Details of the contests for the Shetland ponies The Georgian and Sunday American are to award as prizes have been announced.

Many nominations preceded the announcement of details. Since publication of the details in The Georgian Monday there has been a veritable flood of entrants.

What wonder? The contest entails the most pleasant kind of work and the prizes are an incentive to any boy or girl.

Anyone seeking subscriptions for The Georgian and Sunday American, we believe, will be received kindly in any Georgia home, and any contestant may be proud of the ponies and carts which are on the way here to be distributed as prizes.

The contestants already in the field, of course, have an advantage. There is every reason for starting now. Ask your friends to save for your candidate the coupons from The Georgian and Sunday American. They will do it gladly.

Your Friends Will Help.

Crown Prince Frederick Wilhelm of Germany is very kind to the poor, his latest effort in their behalf being his arrangement to take one hundred poor children from the schools of Berlin for a three weeks' stay at the seashore. He is to defray all expenses from the profits of a book he has written, and the happy youngsters are to be sheltered in the quarters of his army regiment.

scribe for The Georgian and American to subscribe. You will be asking them to do a favor to themselves, for they will get at no advance over the regular price the best newspaper in the South, besides helping you.

And if all your friends already subscribe to The Georgian and American, as no doubt most of them do, ask them to pay in advance. They will gain by this, as well as you.

Remember, there are eight districts in the city; two prizes for the State at large, one outside the State, besides the prizes for carriers and agents.

A subscription to the daily and Sunday papers for one year counts for 3,500 votes. Subscriptions for less terms count in a carefully graduated scale down to 100 votes for one month's subscription to the daily alone.

Not Limited in Territory.

The districts are not pitted against each other. Contests are on an absolutely equal footing. All you have to do to win is to get more votes than any other contestant in your own neighborhood. You are not limited to your own neighborhood in taking subscriptions or obtaining vote coupons, but can have votes credited to you for coupons or subscriptions received from your friends regardless of where they live.

Meanwhile, do not overlook your opportunity to enjoy a play at the Atlanta Theater-free of all cost.

Miss Billy Long is playing there now. This week the attraction is "The Butterfly on the Wheel," an attraction which made a profound impression in New York.

The Georgians and Americans have no seats for this week's performances, but we have watched the production carefully in order to be able to tell our readers what they may expect from the company.

We are glad to be able to announce that the company headed by Miss Long demonstrates that it is capable of giving a splendid production of the most trying play.

Attractions as strong and stronger than "The Butterfly on the Wheel" are booked for succeeding weeks, and without reservation, we can promise our readers the opportunity of seeing as good theatrical attractions as it ever has been the good fortune of Atlanta to enjoy.

Remember, there is no contest for theater seats. Simply clip the coupon from Thursday, Friday and Saturday issues of The Georgian and from next Sunday's American and mail them in and get a reserved seat in the best part of the house.

NEW TORPEDO BUOY WILL SAVE NAVY MUCH MONEY

SPRINGFIELD, ILL., April 29.—In preparation for possible trouble when the Illinois Senate white slave committee resumes its hearing here to-night, Lieutenant Governor O'Hara to-day ordered ten extra sergeant-at-arms to prevent anyone entering the committee rooms who has not been asked to testify.

A report was widely circulated that a woman had been called to testify and she replied that if she were compelled to appear before the committee she would disclose the names of 50 or more legislators who have spent time and money in her resort. She was not called.

AUSTRIA WILL MOVE ALONE ON MONTENEGRO

Official Announcement of Decision to Force Evacuation of Scutari Is Made.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian. VIENNA, April 29.—Announcement was made at the Foreign Office to-day that Austria had decided finally to act independently in the expulsion of the Montenegrins from Scutari. The statement said:

Austria finding that the Ambassadors' conference in London has produced no results, this Government has decided to take matters into its own hands and carry out the powers' decision regarding the evacuation of Scutari.

Italy is protesting against Austria's action.

Peace Ambassadors Started.

LONDON, April 29.—After having adjourned until May 1, the Ambassadors' conference unexpectedly resumed its sessions in the Foreign Office this afternoon.

This procedure was brought about by Austria's announced determination to act independently in driving the Montenegrins out of Scutari.

MONTENEGRO STARTS TO FORTIFY SCUTARI.

PARIS, April 29.—Montenegrins are determined to hold Scutari against any action that Europe may take. Work of fortifying the city has started. Guns, ammunition and provisions are being taken into the city. This information was received here to-day in a Scutari dispatch.

Although the bulk of the Montenegrin army has been withdrawn from Scutari, King Nicholas' military operations are veiled in mystery.

The diplomatic representative here of Montenegro declares that, if the powers force Montenegro to give up Scutari, King Nicholas will abdicate. The envoy denies Nicholas bargained with Essed Pasha for the surrender of Scutari.

A Cattaro telegram said that it was reported there that a hostile demonstration had been made in Cattaro against the Austrian Minister to Montenegro.

PORTE LENDS SUPPORT TO ALBANIAN INDEPENDENCE.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 29.—The Porte to-day sent instructions to all the Turkish ambassadors and ministers abroad to support Essed Pasha's proclamation of the independence of Albania with himself as King.

According to the belief here, Essed Pasha hoped he might be able to retain the suzerainty of Turkey over Albania by setting himself up as monarch. Turkey also is taking hope from rumors of dissension among the allies.

Bulgarian troops are said to have been repulsed in several sanguinary engagements with Servians near Monastir and with Greeks near Saronika. Turkey has protested to the powers against the aid given the Balkan States by Russia.

MONTENEGRO TO ABANDON SCUTARI, SAYS DIPLOMAT.

VIENNA, April 29.—According to secret information to Austria, it was learned from a diplomatic source to-day, Montenegro will eventually evacuate Scutari, after having made a further show of defiance to Europe.

A Cattaro dispatch declares Crown Prince Danilo yesterday presented the keys of Scutari to King Nicholas there amid a frenzied demonstration.

COLLEGE HEAD REPROVED FOR RAP OF FAITHS

Poteat Is Halted in Attack on Jews and Catholics in Sociological Congress.

Delegates to the Southern Sociological Congress to-day declared the ban last night placed on denominational attacks at the meeting in the Wesley Memorial Church meant a greater usefulness for the work of the congress.

Dr. E. M. Poteat, of Furman University, Greenville, S. C., had launched into bitter denunciation of Catholics and Jews when Dr. A. J. McKelway, acting president, interrupted him. The audience cheered. Dr. Poteat ended his speech on "National Stewardship" with a few more sentences.

Dr. Poteat was the last speaker, and when he arose he asked if the audience would rather listen to his speech or go home to sleep. The crowd urged him to proceed. Soon he was discussing the Jews.

Scores the Hebrews.

"They have failed in their stewardship," he said. "The Protestants have been making the real progress."

Then he turned to the Catholics, saying:

"We must rise up and say that no church with its head abroad shall gain dominion in this country. It must not be allowed."

"I don't see why a red cap on a man's head adds any sense to his brains—"

Dr. McKelway interrupted.

"Pardon me, but there can be no discussion along denominational lines," he said.

Audience Cheers McKelway.

Dr. Poteat thanked him. The audience burst into applause.

Dr. McKelway said all denominations were welcomed in the work of the congress for human welfare, and he interrupted because he feared of forgetting to be taken at Dr. Poteat's remarks.

Several Catholic priests—Father Peter A.
Rapier of Atlanta; Father Peter A.
Crumbly, of Memphis, and Father DuBois, of Marist College—have taken prominent parts in this session of the congress.

MRS. SEVERINA SAMARELLI, of New York, divorced from the husband who called her a "kissless bride."

KISSLESS BRIDE' WAS LOVING ONE STATES MEET HERE

"Rose of Palermo" Gets Verdict in Suit Brought in New York
by Her Husband.

NEW YORK, April 29.—Supreme Court Justice Gerard has handed down a decision declaring that Mrs.
Severina Samarelli, famous as the "Kissless Bride," is not kissless.

In this decree he brands as baseless her husband's charge that his beautiful bride turned her head away whenever he offered to caress or kiss her. Against the protest of Dr. Gaetano F. Samarelli, the husband, Justice Gerard decreed that Mrs. Samarelli is entitled to a separation and alimony. He will fix the amount of her allowance next week.

"Liked to Be Kissed."

Here is the judicial finding concerning Dr. Samarelli's allegation that his wife was "marble-hearted."

Ever since the marriage Mrs.
Samarelli has treated her husband in an affectionate and kind manner. She has kissed, hugged and caressed him continually.

She liked to kiss, hugged and embraced by her husband, and has at all times been affectionate and kind to him.

The Court reviewed the evidence which showed that Dr. Samarelli and his wife, who was known as "The Rose of Palermo," went to Niagara Falls and Canada on their honeymoon. They had intended to make their bridal chamber of his house, and a few days later told his wife he was through with her.

Called Her Cold.

He said he had done these things because his bride was cold and indifferent. He said she shut herself in her mother's apartment and refused to greet him with affection. The Court holds he was at fault in abandoning his wife and refusing her attempts to be reconciled.

Dr. Samarelli started an annulment action, but discontinued it long trial. It is said that he may take an appeal from Justice Ger-ard's decision.

The Old Man Learns Something New

By Herriman

Anecdotes by Famous People

No one had a greater fund of short stories at her disposal than the late Lady Dorothy Nevill, and one in particular that she used to relate was of a very good-natured lady who was always helping a relative of hers who was very extravagant. Having one summer lent this feather-brained creature a considerable sum of money, what was her surprise at the end of the season to be applied to again in order that what were described as some pressing debts might be settled. "I am very sorry," said the kind-hearted lady, "but I can't possibly help you again just now. In order to lend you that money some time ago I was forced to go without a motor this season." "Dear me," was the reply, "if I had only known that I should have been delighted to have lent you mine."

A Lawyer's Story.

Mr. James T. Brady, a New York lawyer, tells this amusing story. When he first opened an office in New York he took a basement room which had been previously occupied by a cobbler. He was somewhat annoyed by the previous occupant's callers, and irritated by the fact that he had few of his own. One day an Irishman entered. "The cobbler's gone, I see," he said. "I should think he had," tarty responded Brady. "And what do you sell?" said the visitor, looking at the solitary table and a few law books. "Blockheads," responded Brady. "Bogors," said the Irishman, "ye must be doing a mighty fine business, ye ain't got but one left."

Edison's Story.

Mr. Thomas A. Edison was accepting blandly a reporter's apology for an error in a quotation. "Oh," Mr. Edison said, "I am rather well used to being misquoted. Electrical terms are always confusing to the lay mind. No wonder. Listen to this." Here Mr. Edison drew a telegram from his pocket. "I got this telegram from an assistant electrician this morning," he said. "Listen." And he read: "Wires with no outside outside. Put inside wire outside and outside inside. Need more outside for inside." He Knew.

It was a party of visitors seeing the sights in Pittsburgh that finally entered the conservatory presented to the city by Mr. Phipps. The curator while showing them around was called away on business and left the visitors in charge of one of the clerks. They came to a beautiful statue which was admired immensely. It was of translucent marble. He pointed out the excellencies of the statue, told the name of the sculptor, and showed it from every viewpoint. One asked: "Alabaster, isn't it?" "No," he said, "Venus."

A Club Yarn.

The following good story was told not long ago at one of the Atlanta clubs: One or two young officers were dining together at a restaurant one night, and the conversation became a discussion on lies and lying generally, and finally there was a warm debate as to who was the biggest liar known to them. An old gentleman sitting at a table near was unable to avoid overhearing the discussion, and after a few minutes he rose and came over to their table. "I have just heard you decide, gentlemen," he said gravely, "that Lieutenant Arthur _____ is the biggest liar you have ever met. I am his father."

After a few seconds' embarrassed silence one of the young officers began to stammer apologies, but the old man waved them aside. "No, no," he said, "don't apologize; it's quite unnecessary. I was only going to say that you may my son Arthur _____ is the biggest liar you have ever met. I am his father."

The Editor's Story.

A certain editor is credited with having related this story: He once ordered a story of a certain length and discovered the novelist had written several hundred words too many. In order to make the story fit the space at his disposal the last few paragraphs were condensed into a single sentence. This is the way it read: "Von Berken took a small glass of whisky, his hat, his departure, no notice of his pursuers, a revolver out of his pocket, and finally his life."

Mr. Barrie's Best.

It is said of Mr. J. M. Barrie that he is rather shy and retiring in manner and one of the "most enjoyable social functions" he ever attended was, it is said, a dinner in which he turned to his neighbor and asked, "Do you converse?" "No, I don't," replied his neighbor. "Neither do I," said Mr. Barrie, comfortably.

Not To Be Believed.

Mr. "Johnnie" Schofield, the comedian, relates an amusing story. A certain doctor had a patient. One day he came to the doctor in great trouble. During the night, he said, he had accidentally swallowed a mouse. The doctor told him to get a cat and some fried cheese and to lie on his back with his mouth open and the cheese on his nose. "Then," said the doctor, "when the mouse smells the cheese he will come up for it, and the cat will then be able to catch it." The man thanked him and went home. But the next day he was back again in worse trouble than ever. "Well, did you do as I told you?" asked the doctor. "Yes," said the man, "but while I was lying on my back I fell off to sleep. Now the cat is missing, and I'm afraid it has gone down after the mouse."

LOWRY ARNOLD GIVES OPINION ON BALL TRUST

By Lowry Arnold.
(Solicitor Criminal Court of Atlanta and Former Director of Atlanta Baseball Association.)

I HAVE been asked to give an opinion as to whether or not organized baseball is a trust. Although I am unable to give a positive answer to this question I will say that it is certainly a trust in effect and in fact. Whether it is a trust technically and legally could only be determined by Congress.

The legal definition of a trust is: "A corporation or combination of individuals under one head and which destroys competition."

Whether organized baseball destroys competition or not I cannot say. But this much is certain, all organized baseball clubs in this country are under an agreement with the National Commission which is headed by one man, Garry Herrmann. This fact would tend to make it a trust.

Although the moguls might be able to stand an investigation of this sort they certainly would not welcome one. If such a course were taken Congress would at least limit the reserve clause and put a stop to the blacklisting of players who did not wish to sign a contract with any one particular club.

I BELIEVE that the proposed Government investigation was absolutely responsible for President Navin of the Detroit club carrying matters in the Club car and bringing it to a ready to a satisfactory close.

IN my opinion the one remedy for all this trouble about players signing would be to limit the reserve clause to three years at the end of which the players may have a chance to sign with whatever club he desired, providing, of course, that he had some plausible reason such as being with a tallend club or among unpleasant surroundings, etc.

It is true that the best players on the poorest teams are to be found in the poorest teams in the country. New York and the other big cities. Of course I believe that organization is absolutely essential to the life of the game, but I also believe that things could be arranged more satisfactorily to all parties if they would get together and fix up matters.

It does not seem that a man like Tom Cobb, who is without a doubt at the head of his profession, and who could easily have signed with the New York Giants or a number of other clubs for a $20,000 salary had he been free, should be blacklisted by organized baseball for refusing to sign with Detroit.

ORGANIZED baseball could not exist without the reserve clause, but I believe that a limit of three years should be placed on it.

Nap Rucker, of Brooklyn, is another notable instance of the restriction, which bettered he would be with a winning club. Surely he cannot be satisfied with his present surroundings, pitching few hit games and invariably losing through the lack of ability of his team mates.

The club owners have a one year reserve clause now, but if a player refuses to report the next year he is suspended, which amounts to the same thing as blacklisting. According to an agreement between all clubs he cannot be hired by any of them, so he is, in fact, an outcast unless he signs with his original club.

Perhaps the best remedy after all would be for Congress to investigate and decide once and for all whether or not organized baseball is a trust.

THERE is just one thing more I should like to say, though it has no bearing whatever on the question I have been discussing.

I wish to say that in my opinion the Southern League is the best organized and controlled of any league in the world. This is due to the grand work done by President W. M. Kavanaugh, who has been at the head of the organization almost from the start. He has run the league with absolute fairness and has played no politics. He has been impartial in his dealings with the Atlanta club.

The league owes much of its great success to Judge Kavanaugh.

OLDFIELD RESENTS BEING LINKED WITH SLAVE CASE

LOS ANGELES, April 29.—George H. Bixby, the Long Beach millionaire banker figuring in the white slave probe, will tell his story to the grand jury to-day. Jack Holt, the Negro William Lacasse, prominent automobile men, have been arrested on a charge made by a fifteen-year-old girl, Barney Oldfield, the racing driver, appeared voluntarily before the grand jury and asked why his name had been connected with the investigation. He denied all knowledge of the girl witnesses.

ATTELL DEFEATS CHENEY IN 15-ROUND BATTLE

BALTIMORE, MD., April 29.—Abe Attell, former featherweight champion, defeated George Cheney of Baltimore, in a fifteen-round bout, last night. Attell needed his cleverness to beat the local boy, as Cheney proved to be one of the toughest featherweights seen around these parts in some time.

The first few rounds of the contest were rather tame, but Attell started to force matters in the fifth and started piling up a lead. The boys weighed in at 124 pounds.

MATT BROCK KNOCKS OUT O'KEEFE IN FOUR ROUNDS

AKRON, OHIO, April 29.—Matt Brock, the Cleveland lightweight, stopped Eddie O'Keefe of Philadelphia, in the fourth round of a scheduled twelve-round bout, last night. O'Keefe was badly battered at the end, and never had a chance. A right uppercut to the jaw put the Philadelphia boy down and out. A large crowd witnessed the fray.

CORDELE TRIUMPHS OVER COLUMBUS Y. M. C. A. TEAM

CORDELE, GA., April 29.—Cordele walked away with the Columbus Y. M. C. A. team this afternoon by the score of 15 to 1. Luttrell, for Columbus, was battered freely, and numerous errors were made by the visiting team. Gillespie, for Cordele, pitched a splendid game.

Two of Bill Smith's Hurling Staff Are Reported Not to Be Training Very Faithfully

By W. S. Farnsworth.

WHEN a team has won a bunch of games and then hits a slump there are always a heap of fans who start roasting the players collectively and individually. Right now Billy Smith's pitching staff is being put over by the critics.

Nevertheless, yours truly received some reliable info last night that two of the Crackers' hurling staff are imbibing liquids stronger than coffee. If this is true the local manager had better get on the job and plaster good heavy fine on the guilty ones.

MILT Reed, the former Marist boy, is sure peppering the old horsemen out in the Central Association and that St. Louis team is almost sure to haul him back into the big league ranks if he keeps up the pace. The following extract is from a Davenport paper:

"Milt Reed was the scintillating star of the afternoon. In four times up he rapped out three hits to the outside of the park by piffling four bases. In the seventh he had a single, he stole both second and third. In the field he was a demon, too, handling six chances perfectly, and one of them was a miraculous one-handed stab of a vicious liner."

AT ST. LOUIS scribe believes that the two best pitchers in the world—and he's a baseball operator too. Said scribe prints the following under a Boston date line:

"First and last, various individuals have been last, various individuals places in any list of the 'Laziest Men on Earth.' I would humbly suggest that my general friend and frequent co-worker, the Wagner operators of the Western Union's operators at the ball games, have already a position well up in the list. He duly qualified at one of last week's games, when, in order to save untooning his own coat, he telegraphed over to New York to ascertain the day."

A TINY monkey drove two of Frank Chance's Pennant Aspiring Yankees to cover the other night in a Gay Gotham Hotel, where the P. A. Y.'s roost when in the big village. Ray Keating and Jack Lelivelt in Williams, here in Atlanta and in Chattanooga.

THE two big golfers of Great Britain are townsmen, both Vardon and Edward Ray having been born at Grouville, in the Isle of Jersey. Ray began his workday life there as a fisherman and Vardon as a gardener. Ray is a younger, weighing thirty-four years old, and Vardon is forty-two. Both met last November in a $2,000 match at St. Louis, and Vardon and Vardon won.

IN their methods these golfers are in sharp contrast. Vardon is the perfection of golfing technique and there is a scientific reason for every thing he does. His driving shot is perfect and each feature of it is based on logical deductions from a knowledge of the resultants of forces. Ray, on the other hand, has a swing that is essentially a lunge at the ball, something on the order of that of Hilton, who seems to be "pressing" on the teeing ground. Vardon has a fondness for a brassie, but Ray uses for brassie shots either a driver or a cleek.

THE two open company regaled at the hotel last Friday night, and one of the singers, who carried the pet monkey, was assigned to the Kid Elberfeld has released outfielder "Red" Massey to the Galveston club of the Texas League.

Pittsburg fans are tickled to death because all games begin at 3 P. M. The late games must go. It is only a question of how long it will take the baseball magnates to wake up to them.

Mike Balenti is planning to entertain 40,000 fans on Frank Chance Day.

It would be quaint indeed if it proved that the Naps are to be pennant contenders—after uncounted years of rotteness.

Umpires have the hardest job in the world—but none of them ever quit.

"It's a bum pitcher," says Davenport, "who can't show smoke in Pittsburgh."

The Reds are trying out Martin Bergammer, formerly a Birmingham rookie. He seems over small for big league doings.

Festus Higgins recently paid $400 for his release from the Scranton club rather than sign for $175 a month.

Time was when opposing clubs welcomed Detroit's pitchers, feared their batters. Now conditions are reversed. The batters are weak, the pitchers strong.

Price Gaskill is still pitching poorly in the International League. He has never quite recovered from the awful grind that Joe McGinnity put him through.

Angermeyer and Atz are said to be released by Charley Frank.

And now comes Chattanooga, the "best club in the league"—which claim is admitted.

CHRISTY MATHEWSON'S BIG LEAGUE GOSSIP

NEW YORK, April 29.—So far in the race this year, the clubs have got away more in a bunch than they did last season. There has been no early starter as Cincinnati was last year, only to crumble and fall back when the going became hardest. After a beginning in the first few games, the Giants have struck their stride now and are walking along at a good pace.

From my point of view, it is necessary for the Giants to get a good lead before the Western clubs come East on the first swing around the circuit, because it is from the Western team we have faced which appears to be very much stronger than it was last year, and this is simply because the club is more on its balance than it was in the race of 1912. The team was handicapped by injuries and Horace Fogel, and Doolin could not get results out of the playing strength of his men. But this season "Charley" has obtained a new owner, who acts like a regular fellow, and the Phillips whole lot with a mediocre set he managed in St. Louis.

TINKER has made a poor start with Cincinnati, but, if I was "Joe," I would consider this a good omen, because "Hank" O'Day got away like a sprinter last year, and then the club fell down badly, while the newspapers fell on him and roasted him to a frazzle. "Joe" has not aroused the anticipations of his rooters by any great showing so far, and, if he comes through strong, they will have a great chance to fall into line later.

The Reds are a strong club, with good ball players. They are bound to come through and make a fight, perhaps, for the pennant, but they are sure to be up there. Tinker has too much of a kick in him to stand for anything else.

The American League has not straightened itself out, in my mind, at all so far, but by next Thursday I think I'll have a better line on conditions there and can say something about it.

The case of Pittsburgh is the case of Wagner. The club is making great efforts to keep the real condition of the big Dutchman a secret, but it is no news around the circuit that grave fears have been expressed by men on the Pirates as to whether Wagner will ever play regularly again. Without Wagner, the Pirate infield looks very bad. It is as easy to build an infield around Wagner as it is to put up a fortress with Gibraltar as nucleus. Tear down Gibraltar and where is your fortress? Eliminate Wagner, and what has become of your infield?

CLARKE has a great pitching staff, and his outfield is strong and faster than last year, with the addition of Hofman in playing form. He is a fast man, covers much ground and is a vicious hitter. With Wagner, the Pirates would have a great chance at the pennant. Without him, I fail to see them; although, of course, I may be wrong. Seldom have I been able to cash a bet on a ball game. Infrequently do I lose a political wager, although I know nothing of politics and its ins and outs.

EVERS seems to be going pretty well with his Cubs, better than most of us expected he would. His pitching staff is moving smoothly and his infield appears to be very evenly balanced. Bridwell has returned to form and solved the question of shortstop for Evers. Sauer is a good first baseman, improving with the passing of each season.

Zimmerman is a hitter that would add to any club, and is a reliable fielder. If Evers can maintain his pitchers in some kind of shape and hold the club together so that it is working all the time, I expect he will be up in the fight for the pennant. In this keeping the team together, Zimmerman is bound to be a big aide.

He is a close friend of Evers and because, like many another ball player, he wants to cut in on the world series money, he wants to measure up to him.

Leon Ames has settled down a lot. He gets on bases this year he is going to do well. I expect he will be a dependable pitcher by the time he is 30.

Mike Chance says he would give $10,000 to-day for Tinker. But Joe isn't on the market.

Comiskey is planning to entertain 40,000 fans on Frank Chance Day.

It would be quaint indeed if it proved that the Naps are to be pennant contenders—after uncounted years of rotteness.

Umpires have the hardest job in the world—but none of them ever quit.

PREP LEAGUE NOTES

Athletes at G. M. A. are showing a great amount of interest in preparing for the prep meet May 9. Shedecker and Baile are practicing with the hammer, while Griffin, Maret and Brown are showing to good advantage with the shot.

Sifford, of G. M. A. should prove a star in the prep meet this year. This lad is a wonder in the hurdles and short dashes. He has equaled the best records made at G. M. A. for the broad jump, and is doing over 5 feet daily in the high jump.

Jim Parks, the crack sprinter on the Tech High track team, is going after the record for the 100-yard dash in the prep meet this year. He thinks his toughest competitor will be Charlie Allen, of Marist. Parks is training every day for this event.

Bill Bedell, the star track man and baseball player of Tech High, is out of school for a few days on account of sickness. Bill worked a bit in the high school track meet April 18, and has not been well since.

Jean Weston, of Tech High, is the speediest pitcher in the local Prep League this season, and looks good for a berth on the all-prep. He pitched a great game against Marist, and will be in the next game against Boys High.

Athletes are showing a lot of support to Boys High this year. The baseball and track teams are the best school has given in years, and more enthusiasm is being shown by the students.

SMITH STICKS ON FINES, BUT CRACKERS LOSE

By Percy H. Whiting.
Under the lash of fines and threats (implied if not expressed) Bill Smith is driving onward a wavering pitching staff.

Yesterday he launched his sole remaining winner, Gil Price, at the hands of the Volunteers—only to see him beaten, 4 to 3, in the topsy-turvy ball game Atlanta has seen in years.

To-day goodness only knows whom he will work, but it is likely to be Becker.

WHOEVER Bill Smith works knows well that he must pitch to win. For Bill drove home that lesson late last night and hammered it in with some fat fines.

The rumor went out last week that several of the Cracker pitchers were hitting the high spots again. Evidently the news was not long in getting to baseball headquarters. The result was that when some of the Cracker hurlers stepped up to the captain's office next layday to draw their coin they will find a fat slice removed.

"We've got some ball players money in our pockets," said President Callaway yesterday. "We heard about the joy riding and we assessed some fines. We are out to win this year. We don't intend to let a matter of thirteenth stand in the way."

IT wouldn't be reasonable to expect the Vols to admit they were lucky to win yesterday but look over this arc of facts:

1. Price allowed 3 hits, Dahlgren 9.
2. Price walked 6 men, Dahlgren 11.
3. One Vol error figured in the scoring, 2 Cracker miscues.

Yet the Crackers lost, 4 to 3.

THAT Dahlgren escaped alive is due to heroic pitching in the pinches.

Consider, please, that the recruit from Redland, walked seven men in the first three innings and yet was not scored on—and this in the face of the fact that he was pitching for the team that leads the league in slugging.

Slipping after slumping the Crackers ailed the bases all inning long, but in the ninth, when his couldn't be delivered, thanks to the amazing curves and cunning of the tall kid, who rose to heights of real pitching eminence when the need arose.

You can write the Crackers' epitaph in either one of two ways and it will tell the tale:

They didn't hit in the pinches.

A LOT of odd happenings punctuated this freaky game. For instance that posky performer, Dave Callahan—unable to hit—got on bases safely twice on errors and both times scored.

Then Johnny Lindsay pinched a hit in the fourth that scored two men and Johnny is a natural. Feeding him to the Vols, Smith, Agler, Dunn, Long, Graham, Alperman and Price all came up with chances to drive in two men if they hit—and only Price delivered a hit that scored a run.

Note also that Gilbert Price held the Vols to 3 hits for four bases—and that he made three hits himself, for four bases. And you lost.

Here are some more freaks:

More than half the hits off Dahlgren were infield scratches.

No Vol who made a hit scored a run.

Though 30 men were on bases not one stole a base.

Lindsay played the best ball—and the worst—for the Vols.

THE game was a thriller toward the finish—a regular ringer that got the crowd on its frozen heels and kept it there, yelling and jumping until Agler's fly-out ended it.

The Crackers started the fifth inning with the score 4 to 0 against them. In the sixth Williams' single and Price's two-bagger cut down the lead one run. In the seventh Long's infield hit, Smith's error and an infield out put another man over. In the eighth after Agler walked Alperman hit into a double play. Welchone then singled but Graham couldn't deliver.

In the ninth the Crackers put on full steam ahead and Long opened with a single. Smith grounded to Johnny Lindsay and Jawn let the ball go skittering between his legs. Williams, the new shortstop, had a sharp chance but fanned. Dahlgren weakened and walked. Joe Dunn. Price had a chance to win his own ball game but he was all through and on his infield out Dunn went out and Long scored. This put it clear up to Agler but Joseph fell a victim to the extent of a fly into Judd Daley's hands and thus ended one thrilling ball game.

HUNT WHIFFS FIFTEEN

MACON, GA., April 29.—Mercer took the first of a two-game series from Sewanee here yesterday, 4 to 2. Hunt, of Mercer, fanned fifteen of Sewanee's star stickers and pitched a gilt-edge ball.

The weather was more suited for football, and the coldness was rendered more disagreeable by the wind down last week. However, the few fans present were brought to their feet by the great playing of the two rivals.

Mercer scored one run in the second, two in the third and one in the sixth. Sewanee registered two in the third.

Alabama Squad Shows Much Class

By J. H. Heisman.

THE Alabama-Tech games of last week demonstrated little that was new regarding the Tuscaloosa team. They are a fast clean-fielding set, and clever enough on bases. A number of their players look like healthy claimants for All-Southern honors, and the team itself is making a record which will stand them high in the percentage column. They have won two from Mississippi A. & M., two from Tuscaloosa, two from Mercer, and now two from Tech. The only college games they have lost were the two to Georgia in Athens, and then they were without the aid of their crack first basemen. Gandy who along with McDowell in left field and Captain, at short, ranks as a topnotcher.

Welsh appears to be able to hit harder than when he last fought in this country, and Ketchel was saved by the bell from a possible knockout in the eighth round.

"Pitchers Will Win for Giants"
Chief Meyers Writes for Georgian

By Chief Meyers.

(Star Catcher of Champion Giants.)

N have a long hard row to hoe before we clinch a third straight pennant. If we hoe all the time and hoe our level best, we should reach the final hill with plenty to spare over the field.

For the first time since I knew him Christy Mathewson was this year at his very best when the season opened. Right now he is the Matty of old.

Big Jeff Tressau is in far better form than he was at this time last year. He is at his best in hot weather. With his added experience and wonderful endurance I look for him to give both Matty and "Rube" a battle for club pitching honors.

Leon Ames is another who counts. He is a good and steady player. He has been very unfortunate in the matter of tough breaks against him. But he is far better and steadier than I have ever seen him. The same may be said of reliable George Wiltse. No better southpaw pitching could be imagined than that which he showed Philadelphia for ten innings Tuesday.

Colt Twirlers of Merit.

McGraw has a capable staff of pitching veterans supplemented by unusually promising recruit material. Either Demarey or Goulet would stand up well under regular duty, I am sure. Schupp, a young southpaw, has a dandy curve and plenty of speed. I will be greatly mistaken if he is not a real sensation in time. He will be better when he fills out.

These three colts, with the ever-willing Doc Crandall, assure the Giants a most wonderful reserve corps. When the doubleheaders begin to pile up such an asset will the veterans have to be worked to death to keep our team out in front.

It is much too early in the fight to draw conclusions about competitors. I have thought all along that Pittsburgh would give us the hardest run for the laurels. But I will have to wait to see the Pirates in action.

It is likely that if Kerner shows any hitting strength he will be kept through the season as utility man. He will not be released for the present, at any rate.

A Waste of Time

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

A YOUNG girl writes: "I am seventeen, and love a man four years my senior. But he meets other girls. When he meets men with these other girls he always talks to me but he keeps on meeting them. How can I break him of this?"

Ethel tells her troubles: "What do you think of a young man who professes to love a girl and still admits he goes with others? He claims I am the only girl he cares for, but still he meets others."

"I am seventeen," writes B. W., and in love with a boy of nineteen. "We have been meeting each other steady till last week, when he didn't come, and I found out he was meeting another girl and was deceiving me. For all that, I cannot seem to lose my love for him. How can I win back his love and get him from the other girl?"

Can't Believe Him.

Heartbroken writes: "I am eighteen and in love with a boy two years older. He tells me he loves me, but I see him with other girls. When I ask him if he cares for the other girls he always says 'No,' but I can't believe him. How can I win him back?"

There are no two in the world, perhaps, who can agree on what it is that causes the greatest waste of time. And by that I mean something a little more than time as measured by the clock and calendar. I mean the value of it, as compared with the results achieved. One wasted time while waiting for a car, but the car finally comes. One wastes time in reading worthless literature, but often such mental nausea results that one is cured of the desire.

The skeptical say that much time is wasted in making love, but those of broader minds and younger hearts have learned that every such experience leaves one a little more sympathetic and charitable.

The man who hoards his money regards every minute wasted that doesn't bring him more, and the tramp who spends his days blinking lazy eyes at the sun is sure that every one who works is a time waster.

But I contend that there is a way more prodigal than all of these. And that is the time wasted in trying to win back a lover whose affections have begun to cool.

It is as if one lost something absolutely worthless in the beginning, and instead of straitening up and walking on, glad to be relieved of the burden, went down on one's knees in the dust and dirt to seek for that which was lost.

A Good Thing.

There is a well and a cry and time is spent in weeping that should be devoted to rejoicing. A love that can set is a mistaken love; it is the best thing that can happen to a girl to lose it before it is fettered on her.

If it had been worth it, it wouldn't have been lost so easily. It would have taken much more than the pretty face of another girl to have won it away. The fact that it could be lost puts a price mark on it, and that price mark is very, very low.

Yet day after day, girls, on their knees in the dust of humiliation and despair, cry to me after vainly searching for the worthless bauble they have lost. "How can I win it back? Help me, for my heart is broken!"

And how I would like to help you, poor little girls with your aching hearts! But my method would not be the kind you seek. I would raise you to your feet and have you laugh at your loss, and walk on, glad to be relieved of the care of anything so worthless, and glad that you lost it before its possession had become more serious.

CHILDREN

Parents Should Counsel Them About Their Habits

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

BEFORE you send your little girls and boys to the public school, take them in your arms and talk with them pleasantly, explaining their conversation and habits while away from you. If you are not mentally fitted for the task of giving them some knowledge of the great facts which underlie all created life and giving these faces in the right way, it might be well for you to consult some of the women's clubs in your town, and ask for the best teacher of eugenics, and find what booklets have been written to guide parents in these very matters.

Eugenics Important.

This science of eugenics is becoming an important factor in the welfare of our species, and it will not be difficult for you to learn something of its workings. It shows how the world is progressing; for ten years ago, when this subject was discussed in this column, it brought down a flock of disapproving letters, and horrified parents declared the proposition was one which pointed at the destruction of innocent children.

Now there are eugenic organizations formed all over the world, with the object of beginning to train children in right ideals of sex relations, and in so laying the foundation of mental and moral and physical health for the rising generations. The science of the dangers of alcoholic stimulants are being taught in schools, and it is having its marked effects on the minds of the young.

Ignorance Is Worse.

One small boy urged his parents to avoid the use of stimulants, giving them a scientific reason for his plan. It will be impossible for that boy to become a drunkard, for deep in his conscience is the knowledge of the destructive powers which lie in strong drink. The dangers which lie in ignorance of sex facts are much graver than ignorance of the evils of drink. Childhood is imperilled, youth, maturity, and entire generations menaced by this ignorance.

The public schools and all private schools and all country schools are endangering evil along with good. Children are taught everything save the most vital truths of life during school hours, and there is no guidance or protection given them out of school.

Innocent and perverted are thrown side by side, and sacred facts are made known to pure young minds in the guise of obscenity and depravity.

Mothers and fathers are blind and stupid on these subjects, and through conceit and vanity imagine their children better educated above any danger of contamination. Yet sexual contamination takes place all the same.

It is the business of instructors to provide the common-sense teaching which parents so woefully lack in the training of the young. But let it be done wisely, carefully and delicately. Many books are written with views guiding the young away from unhealthful thoughts, only serve to guide them toward them, and many instructors, who seek to allay precocious curiosities, produce it by lack of right method.

Should Be Taught.

Children should be taught that we are ONE WITH NATURE, ONE WITH MOTHER EARTH. And that as plants spring forth, so does man, and that God, the Source and the Cause, lies back of everything, and that His methods are beautiful and sacred and holy.

And then they should be taught to be silent on these subjects, and to refuse to talk or associate with children who make light or obscene references to the topic.

Begin to-day some plan to instruct your children in these matters.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

YOU ARE RIGHT.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am 20 years of age and recently met a young man two years my senior. He asked to call on me, which I permitted. But each time he asks me for a kiss, which I don't think is "over" until we are engaged. MAMIE.

Don't grant his request until you have your engagement ring on you finger.

NOT A MATTER OF WILL.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am 20 and in love with a young man one year my senior. A few weeks ago he left the city and promised to write to me. Shall I wait and see if he writes, or shall I forget him? MADGE.

If you love him you will find that forgetting is not entirely a matter of will. I question the depth of your affection. Were it the kind that endures, you would, at least, give him opportunity to prove his affection.

An Easy Solution.

THE mother of Master Gustave Adolphus Bims was giving a Christmas party, and on the sole condition that he behaved himself, he was allowed to participate in the festivities.

Just as he was about to go, he do all her relatives. They will visit him, borrow off him, sponge upon him to a heartless extent, but woe be to him if he ever wants any help.

It's always: "Sorry, old man, but I'm particularly hard up this month," or something like that.

Although life is worth living, taken all round it is a hard world, and one has to be fairly hard-natured to make any respectable show in it nowadays.

Good nature can be carried too far.

The simple fact is that a good-natured man has no will or temper of his own; no initiative. He always follows where others lead, afraid to strike out on his own account, for fear, not only of failure, but of treading on other people's corns. He would do anything rather than disagree with his rivals.

Following, instead of leading, he is always a servant, never a master.

“Lovers are prone to self-delusion,” said he, tenderly, as they sat looking at the stars. “I do not understand what you see in me that you love me so much.”

“That's what everybody says,” giggled the ingenuous maiden.

Then the silence became so deep that you could hear the stars twinkling, and Jane can't.”

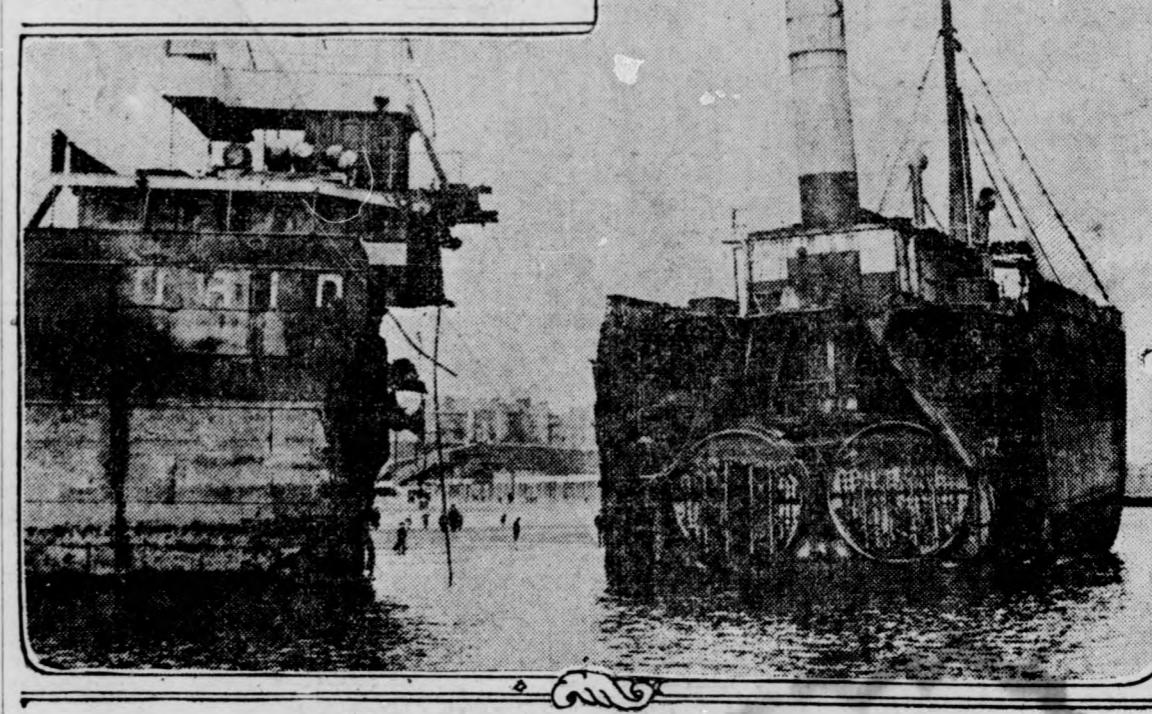

“Because,” answered the small incorrigible, as he resumed his seat on the black satin hassock which so completed the picture, “you can pull yours out, and Jane can't.”

The Ship That Broke Itself

Never, perhaps, has the camera illustrated the force of wind and waves on a vessel of iron and steel as strikingly as in this picture.

This shows the German freighter Orion, which was blown on the Roker sands, Sunderland, England, during a terrific gale.

All efforts to float the vessel failed, and it was abandoned. Within two weeks after it had stranded it split literally in two, as the picture shows.

Presumably as a joke, one individual formed a company with a capital of $50 divided into 500 shares of one cent each.

Twenty companies, according to Mr. Jordan, were formed in a fortnight in London for providing seats for those who wished to view the Diamond Jubilee procession of 1897, and one clever individual managed to pay his return fare to America, and have a balance of $4,500 in hand, by selling somebody else's window ten times over at $500 a time.

MARRIED LIFE The Third Year

Warren's Sister Curtly Refuses to Help
Helen Entertain Their Cousin

By MABEL HERBERT URNER.

"WELL we're not going to stand for this," declared Warren grimly. "If she can't get up and have breakfast with us, she can do without."

"But, dear, she's used to having her coffee and toast in bed," ventured Helen. "She says it makes her head ache to get up without it, and that her mother always lets her sleep until nine."

"Then if Aunt Emma wants to sleep her, all right, but she'll get no humorizing here. That's all rot about her delicate health. She looks stronger than you do, and I'm not going to let you wait on her."

It was so rarely that Warren considered her, that Helen felt a faint glow of pleasure at this.

"Now tell her to-day," he persisted, "that hereafter she'll have to have breakfast with us."

"Oh, I hate to do that, she'll write back to Aunt Emma that we—"

"Don't care a hang what she writes back. If we've got to have her here for two or three weeks, we're not going to do any extra humorizing. Understand?"

"Hush, dear, if she's awake, she may hear you."

"Dear good if she does. What's the matter with these eggs? Don't poach very well, do they?"

34 Cents a Dozen.

"Why, they should—they're white leghorns. I paid thirty-four cents a dozen." Then after a moment's pause, "Dear don't you think Carrie ought to ask her there for a few days?"

Warren shrugged his shoulders. Like the rest of the family, he stood somewhat in awe of his married sister.

"Don't know. Carrie's not keen on having company."

"Well, we're not either, and I don't see why we should be expected to do it. At Carrie's house this afternoon, and if she doesn't invite her I'd like to hint in some way that we think she should. Would that be all right?"

"Fire ahead, but I don't think Carrie'll take any of your hints. Wonder if I'll need an overcoat this morning?" as he rose from the table.

"Oh, yes you'd better wear it. You're not over your cold yet."

When she had seen Warren off Helen went to Alice's door. There was no answer at first, but a louder knock brought a sleepy "Come in."

The disordered room grated on Helen, and she glanced disapprovingly at the clothes strewn about.

"Alice, it's ten minutes after nine," she said coldly, picking up a skirt from the floor.

"Oh, is it that late?" yawned Alice. She was undeniably pretty, lying there with her long braids over the pillow and a faint pink flush in her cheeks. "But I'm so sleepy—do I have to get up just yet?"

Get Up for Breakfast.

"It puts Maggie back so with her work. Warren was saying this morning that he'd rather you'd get up and have breakfast with us."

"I couldn't eat a thing if I did," decisively, "and I'd have a dreadful headache. But I'll get up now, as soon as she brings my breakfast."

Maggie grumbly prepared and carried in the tray. She had taken decided dislike to this guest, who demanded so much waiting on.

"Cousin Helen, will you lend me a curling iron?" called Alice a little later. "I forgot to bring any."

"Why, I haven't one," answered Helen. "I never use an iron."

"Well, I've simply got to have one! I was too sleepy to roll up my hair last night. I wonder if Maggie hasn't one?"

"I'm sure I don't know," coldly.

But Alice was not to be discouraged, and with a kimono thrown about her she ran out to Maggie, returning with a curling iron.

"Oh, Cousin Helen," she called again,

The Great Charm of Naturalness

An Interview With Miss Valli Valli, the English Beauty

MISS VALLI VALLI IN TWO CHARMING POSES.

In the small picture on the left England's exponent of natural beauty shows an attitude of affection which she deplores and continually guards against. The other pose shows her as her natural self.

By LILIAN LAUFERTY.

ALL you pathetic little pink and white would-be beauties who march up and down Peachtree or Whitehall of a sunny spring day—don't you want to know how to be really pretty? Don't you want to be—not a "gaslight" belle—but a sweet girl who can brave Old Sol's bright rays in the calm assurance that he is revealing beauty, not betraying beauty secrets?

Compels Sympathy.

Well, then—BE NATURAL. Naturalness does not seem to be the fad of this moment, but it will have its day soon, I think, for we have a wonderful exponent of natural charm and the charm of naturalness prominently before us now. This is Miss Valli Valli, the actress now playing in New York in "The Purple Road."

As Wanda, the little maid of Vienna, who loved Napoleon wisely—if too well for her deserving—Valli Valli is an exquisite, sympathy-compelling figure.

"How do you do it?" I asked. "How do you hold all of us throbbing and waiting as you stand in your simple gray frock on the grand staircase in Napoleon's palace, while all around are magnificent women in imperially gorgeous clothes?"

"Naturalness and feeling," began the girlish star, and then broke off. "You do, I wish you'd tell me what I want to say—so glad." And then we both laughed at the unstudied exhibition of her pet "naturalness."

"Ah, but I do believe in naturalness everywhere. Look natural, be natural, and then the great feelings can find expression through you."

"Warren, I know I'd nothing to do with Alice coming here. Your Aunt Emma wrote asking if she might visit us. 'Oh, yes it's once you get started there's no shutting you off. See if you can't hurry up dinner—I didn't have any lunch."

The dainty singing actress had perched herself fearlessly under the glare of the low-swing incandescent lamp that revealed—but found nothing to betray. A true "crowning glory" is her coronet of copper-toned brown hair, so plentiful that it is quite sufficient dower of beauty without the addition of a soft pink flushed skin and great gray eyes. And later she told me her simple, effective method of caring for hair and skin: truly beauty secrets—till you know how!

"Ellen Terry taught me to 'snake'—I don't use pink and white shading high-lights, but the bronze-brown-red tones the men of the stage employ. This is so much more like the tones of the human skin. You see, to look natural on the stage one has to use make-up as THE EXTRA OUNCE OF EMPHASIS that countersacts the glare of the lights. That is why I'm so successful—though I must confess to a very earnest addiction for my powder puff. As a finish—to dust off the little shine from the lips."

"Well, if you think that, all right—but you needn't expect anything from me. I've always thought Alice was a good, selfish girl, and even if we were separated, I don't think I'd want her. And you can tell Warren just how I feel about it."

STARTLING RABIES INCREASE ALARMS

Chamber of Commerce Planning Campaign for State-Wide Dog-Muzzling Law.

A startling increase in the number of rabies cases is shown in the report of Dr. Clarence H. Green, Director of the State Pasteur Department. While the total number of cases handled in 1912 was 678, a heavy increase over the previous year, during the first quarter of 1913 the cases handled were 301, nearly half of last year's total.

This increase has attracted the attention of the Chamber of Commerce and its Public Safety Committee will seek to secure passage of a state-wide dog-muzzling law. Dr. Green, chairman of the committee, has written to the authorities in London asking for a copy of the muzzling law enforced there.

In 1908 the number of cases treated was 216, in 1909 it jumped to 449, while 1910 with 462 and 1911 with 485 showed a slight increase.

Year's Reprieve on Excess Baggage Law

Commerce Commission Will Give Drummers Time to Comply With New Ruling.

Traveling men have been granted a reprieve from the original order of the Interstate Commerce Commission enforcing excess baggage charges on trunks more than 45 inches in any dimension, and barring completely trunks over 72 inches in size.

The original order was to take effect to-day, but at later hearings the commission postponed definite action, and also announced that when the order is announced, the railroads must give traveling men and truck manufacturers one year in which to prepare to comply.

Southern Courts for Rich, Critics Assert

Sociological Congress Makes Plea for Administration of Justice Instead of Law.

Charges that courts in Southern States are partial to the wealthy and to whites, rather than negroes, are contained in a statement of creed adopted by the conference on race problems of the Sociological Congress at its concluding session.

"We plead for courts of justice instead of mere courts of law," says the resolution. "We recognize that the South is no exception, in that its courts of justice are often more favorable to the rich man than to the poor."

Lynching was condemned as the worst form of lawlessness.

SENATOR TO ASK INQUIRY INTO CIVIL SERVICE LAW

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Senator Pomeroy of Ohio is preparing to ask the Senate for an inquiry into the administration of civil service law. It is charged that large numbers of persons have been placed in the civil service through favoritism, without examination.

SPOT HOUSES GIVE GOOD SUPPORT TO COTTON IN FACE OF GOOD WEATHER NEWS.

NEW YORK, April 29.—The buying of May cotton by brokers with Liverpool houses was the main factor in the opening of the cotton market to-day.

First prices were unchanged for May and 2 to 3 points higher for other positions. New crop cottons were in demand from those sold on several points after the call on May.

During the early forenoon every position seemed to want May cotton and bids were jumping to 14 1/2 within fifteen minutes. July and other positions were in active demand, but the trade seemed to send its attention to the April position.

W. D. Weatherford, of Nashville, Tenn., in an address on work among the negroes of the South declared that only a thorough understanding between the two races would preserve racial integrity.

"If the white people and the black people of the South," he said, "ever understand each other, racial self-respect will safeguard the purloins of racial integrity."

Trade Needed by Child.

The inherent right of a child to play was advocated by Rev. Vernon
T. A. Nason, of Norfolk, Va.

The child who is made to work all day during the tender years of his life hasn't a fair chance in the world," he said. "The amusements of youth are as essential to the growth of a child as the rain and sunshine are to the growth of the flower."

Mrs. W. L. Murdock, of Birmingham, Ala., and Judge Moray Gates, of New York, talked of methods of dealing with young delinquents.

Organized charities was the general topic of debates at the Wesley Memorial gathering, made by James P.
Kranz, of Memphis, and R. T. Solensten, of Jacksonville.

Public health, with reference to medical inspection in schools and the anti-tuberculosis fight, was discussed at the First Baptist Church by Dr.
L. T. Royster, of Norfolk, Va., and
J. D. Strain, of Nashville.

"Many children," said Dr. Royster,
"are thought to be incorrigible when they are suffering from some physical defect."

Would Reform Convicts.

On courts and prisons, W. H. Whittaker,
A. J. G. Wells, of Kentucky; Prof. W. C. Kilvington, of Tennessee, and Prof. Morris Parmalee, of the University of Missouri, advocated treatment to reform convicts. Mr.
Whittaker, who is warden of a Virginia convict farm, said the honor system can be worked effectively.

Prof. Parmalee argued that a needed reform in criminal procedure is to forbid the press to comment on cases in court. He advocated abolishing grand juries and permitting the prosecuting officer to bring in defendants.

Dr. C. P. Wilmer, of this city, spoke at the First Congregational Church on "Denominationalism as an Aid and as a Hindrance to the Kingdom of God."

Congress Likely Will Convene in Memphis Next Year—Gov.
Mann New President.

That the two conventions may be held together the Southern Sociological Congress to-day postponed the selection of a convention city for next year until the will of the National Conference on Charities and Correction can be ascertained.

Despite the urgent invitation from the State of Texas to meet in Houston, it is probable that Memphis, Tenn., will be chosen. The charities conference has never met in the South and the sociological congress will urge that it go to Memphis, too.

With the general session at Wesley Memorial Church to-night, at which
Dr. John A. Rice, of Fort Worth, Texas, and Dr. Henry F. Cope, of Chicago, will be principal speakers, the meeting of the congress will come to a close and the delegates will leave for their homes.

Among the speakers at to-day's general session was Dr. Henry Stiles Bradly, of Worcester, Mass., who spoke on "The Drag on Modern Civilization." The greatest drags, he said, were war and the reproduction of the unit.

Officers Are Elected.

Officers of the congress elected for the ensuing year are: President, Governor William H. Mann, of Virginia; first vice president, Dr. John E.
White, Atlanta; second vice president,
Mrs. J. A. Baker, Houston, Texas;
secretary, Dr. J. E. McCulloch, Nashville, Tenn.; treasurer, D. E. Holden, ness, Nashville.

The United States, in honor and for humanity's sake, cannot turn the Philippines loose and undo the unqualified good it has wrought among the people since its occupation. It cannot cease administering its affairs as it is now doing without bringing the most serious consequences among them.

— Bishop Samuel Fallows, of the Reformed Episcopal Church, on his return from the Philippines Islands.

"Much has been said of the dignity of Japan. But what shall be said of the proposition that a great State, itself an empire, of possibilities greater than those of most nations, shall be halted by a legislative act, admittedly within its jurisdiction, by the protest of a foreign power which has itself enacted even more stringent regulations on the subject? What is the dignity of California?"—Governor Johnson of California, in a protest against Federal interference with the alien land law bill.

REFUSED TO MARRY GIRL;
HER SKIRT TOO SHORT

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Because her skirt was not of marriageable length, ministers of two cities refused to marry Miss Carrie Edith Adams, declaring they did not think her age any greater in proportion than her short skirt. Miss Adams was brought from New Garden, Va., by Walter Powell, of the same town. Rockville, Md., and Washington ministers declined the girl too young and refused to perform the ceremony. The couple finally appealed to Judge C. S. Dickey who tied the knot.

Guy Mitchell's Lucky Day—Folsom
Lease Brings $7,000—Other Realty Notes.

On January 11, 1912, the Realty Investments sold to Guy Mitchell a 53.9 by 105-foot lot on Walton Street, 54 feet southeast of Cone Street, for $50,000, and on April 17 Mr. Mitchell sold it to John G. and B. Frank Bell and Dr. Delos Hill for $75,000. The papers in the various transactions went to record yesterday.

The Bells have taken one-quarter interest each and Dr. Hill has one-half. Mr. Mitchell bought this lot for $5,000 cash and gave nine annual notes of $5,000 each. He had taken up but one of the notes when he cashed in.

Folsom Lease Brings $7,000.

The lease and store fixtures of the Folsom Restaurant Company at 18-20 Marietta Street were auctioned off on the premises by B. Bernard this morning and brought $7,000. Dr. W. Von Riedl was the buyer, and it is understood that he represents outside parties who will improve the location and create a restaurant or similar establishment.

This is one of the most valuable properties in town and the present 10-year lease calls for a rental of $9,500 to $10,500 a year. The frontage on Marietta is 50 feet, and the restaurant is in two divisions.

Peachtree Acreage Bought.

O. D. Murphy, Jr., Smith & Ewing, real estate agency, has bought of J. E. Smith, a well-known bank president of Dublin, Mr. Smith's one-fourth interest in 120 acres of land on Peachtree road, adjoining the Folsom farm, one mile from Chamblee, at the rate of $40,000 for the entire place, or something less than $10,000 for the acreage which Mr. Smith was the owner of the other three-quarters.

Mr. Gorman will spend some $20,000 developing this tract. The frontage on Peachtree is 4,000 to 5,000 feet and the acreage is about 3,000 feet deep. The Buckhead car line is expected to reach it in another year.

Land Company Organized.

Charles Ryan, James Robinson, John S. Conroy, Turner Elliott and Lowry Arnold have petitioned the Superior Court for a charter for the Riverside Heights Land Company to develop private properties. The capital stock will be $10,000 at the start, with a limit of $50,000.

To Buy Brookhaven Club.

Real estate men who see a good property enhancement in the Brookhaven Club by the Capital City Club are exulting to-day over the news that the two clubs will probably be run as one. At the annual meeting of the Capital City last night a committee was appointed to go into this matter, and it recommended the appointment of five additional members, the whole committee to decide on buying the 150 acres at Brookhaven.

The original committee is composed of Robert F. Maddox, John E. Murphy and Dr. W. S. Elkin. They consider a definite proposition from the Brookhaven Club and are expected to take it up this week. In this event the members of the Capital City Club will begin at once to improve the Brookhaven property with the view of golfing, boating and bathing there throughout the summer.

Executor's Sale May 6.

Before the court house door Tuesday, May 6, Ross Sims & Co. will sell at auction the property at 168 South Forsyth Street, between Garnett and Brotherton Streets, on terms of one-third cash, the assumption of a $2,000 loan, and the balance in one and two years at 6 per cent. The lot is 53 by 203 and extends back to an alley.

This property is in the path of a steady development of the South Side's new wholesale district and is expected to bring a good price.

Lots Put on Market.

J. E. McCullough & Company have put on the market 30 residence lots in Capitol View at $450 to $500 each, on terms of $25 cash and $10 a month.

The Greater Atlanta Realty Company is offering 150 suburban lots for $100 each, on terms of $5 down and $25 a month, with no interest and no tax.

B. M. Grant & Company have put on sale a number of lots on Hunter Street, a block east of Cascade Avenue and the Gordon Street car line, at $800, on terms of $200 cash and the balance in 6, 12, 18 and 24 months at 7 per cent. These lots are 50 by 175 feet to a 10-foot alley.

Builders Still Busy.

Among the citizens seeking permits for various kinds of dwellings at Building Inspector Hays' office in the City Hall to-day were G. H. Laney, who will build a two-story frame dwelling at 1172 Piedmont Avenue, Carl Brenner, who will build an one-story frame at Barnett Street; J. B. Daniel, who will build a one-story frame at 15 Park Lane, and B. Miller, who will add a story to dwellings at 306 and 308 Auburn Avenue, and at 105 and 107 Old Wheat Street, at a total cost of $3,000.
